Threatens Attack.

San Francisco, Jan. 27.—President Sun Yat Sen, of the provisional Chinese republic, has been anathematized by the Manchus.

Information reached here today in a telegram to the Chinese Daily Free Press.

To Use Dynamite.

Peking, China, Jan. 27.—The agents of the revolutionary party in this city recently intimated that a dynamite campaign was not improbable in the near future.

The outcome of yesterday and today may be the beginning of a series of similar crimes.

To Kill Many.

It is evidently the latest most prominent officials and military officers who are known to be opposed to the republican government.

The republican agents do not attempt to keep the nature of their mission in Peking a secret, but declare fighting will not be resumed immediately, although isolated conflicts may occur.

Open Communication.

They communicate openly with the staff of Premier Yuan Shi Kai, many of the members of which have expressed revolutionary sympathy.

One of the revolutionary agents here makes the assertion that he has been received by Premier Yuan Shi Kai, who made him the promise to release a number of imprisoned revolutionaries who have been imprisoned recently.

FRENCH INDIGNANT OVER CAPTURE OF BOAT BY ITALIANS

Although Steamer Taken Yesterday Has Been Released, Hague Tribunal May Have a New Case.

Rome, Jan. 27.—The French passenger steamer, "Tartar," which was seized by the Italian torpedo boats last night off Toulon, has been released.

Paris, Jan. 27.—The Italian torpedo boats which seized the French steamer "Tartar" last night, also seized several other boats which were going out from Toulon yesterday.

According to a special dispatch received here today from Rome, a post town on the frontier between France and Tripoli, the capture and shelling occurred in French waters.

The indignation over the incident is very great.

Plan Hague Arbitration.

Rome, Jan. 27.—Reference to the Hague Tribunal for the indemnification resulting out of the capture of the French steamer by the Italian torpedo boats of the party on board the French steamer is received here with satisfaction.

The boats are to be delivered into the care of the French consul at Cagliari, Sardinia, and are to be by land transferred to Marseilles.

The French authorities are to take measures to see that if there are contrabands among them they shall not reach the scene of the war in Tripoli.

Outside French Waters.

A semi-official note this morning explains that the French steamer "Tartar" was seized by the Italian torpedo boats east of Zante, and outside of French waters.

However, after a thorough inspection of the ship had not revealed any contraband the steamer was released.

PLACARDS TO URGE FIRE PREVENTION

State Fire Marshal Will Post "Anti-Red Plague" Signs Throughout State.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—"Anti-Red Plague" posters with some flaming torches of red ink have been put out by State Fire Marshal T. M. Purcell and will be distributed broadcast throughout the Badger state.

Some will be posted in the woods to back up the notices that are tucked up regularly by the state forester.

The fire marshal's department, chiefs of local fire departments and members of the Wisconsin State Fire Protection association will join in the work of plastering these placards in every village, town and city of the state.

The poster is headed: "Anti-Red Plague Fight for fire prevention! Will you help?" After calling attention to the per capita fire waste of the United States as compared with Europe comes the A. B. C. of fire prevention in the form of a few rules of caution which originated in the fire marshal's department.

Judge J. E. Moran has been made superintendent of inspections in the department and will hereafter devote all of his time to this work.

Under him while not engaged in his other duties and assistants will be investigating suspicious fires. He has been notified of a plan in the work of the department by the recent appointment of Attorney John F. Jackson, former assemblyman from Jackson county, as an assistant.

WOLTER FACES DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Condemned New Yorker of Ruth Wheeler, the Murderer Stenographer, About to Pay Penalty for Crime.

New York, Jan. 27.—Albert W. Wolter, whose murder of 15-year-old Ruth Wheeler horrified this city two years ago, is to pay the penalty of his heinous crime in the death chair in Sing Sing Prison early in the coming week.

JUDGE PERMITS USE OF MARGIN SHEETS

Packers Deny Knowledge of Sheets and Do Not Remember Price Estimators Sent Out.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—A ruling in favor of the government in the prosecution of the ten Chicago packers, was made when United States District Judge Carpenter allowed the introduction of evidence of thirty-five original margin sheets of the National Packing Company for the first eight months of 1910.

The defense denied all knowledge of these original margin sheets until suddenly they were produced in court yesterday by District Attorney Wilkerson.

Stegner G. Langher, who has been on the stand for a morning continued his testimony at the day's conclusion.

"Did you send an estimated price, which was desired to obtain, with each set of meat shipped?" replied Langher.

The witness read long lists of cities to which shipments had been made, and divided them into eastern, southern and western territories.

SUSPICION AROUND BAD CHICAGO FIRE

Circumstances of $75,000 Blaze Arouse Police to Investigation of Cause.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—So suspicious are the circumstances surrounding the fire which destroyed four buildings and caused a loss estimated at $75,000 early Friday that an investigation has been ordered.

The fire, which imperiled the lives of a score of persons, and at one time threatened to destroy an entire block, started in the basement of a store, the fire, which imperiled the lives of a score of persons, and at one time threatened to destroy an entire block, started in the basement of a store, the fire, which imperiled the lives of a score of persons, and at one time threatened to destroy an entire block, started in the basement of a store.

LISSON STRIKE IS STILL IN PROGRESS

Architectural Workers Threaten Serious Trouble in Portuguese Capital.

Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 27.—The architectural strike which broke out here on January 25th in the Evora district and which led to violent rioting and conflicts between the strikers and authorities, has not terminated.

MISSOURI EDITORS ENDORSE PRES. TAFT

Also Commend Administration of Governor Hadley—Michigan for Roosevelt Says Governor Osborn.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 27.—The national administration of President Taft and that of Governor Hadley of Missouri, were strongly endorsed by the Missouri editorial association at its final session here today.

The resolution of endorsement states that President Taft had redeemed his platform pledges and that Missouri, under Governor Hadley, had done honor to the republican party.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—"If Roosevelt is nominated he should carry Michigan by at least 100,000 votes," said Gov. Chase Osborn at the Roosevelt national committee headquarters here today.

THE GOVERNOR had believed Roosevelt would be a candidate if the people of the country demanded it.

DEMOCRATS STARTED FILIBUSTER TODAY

First Amendment to Free List Measure Calls Forth Unusual Energies.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The first amendment to the Free List bill started a filibuster which threatened to delay the passage of the measure.

Representative Martin of Colorado, democrat, moved to put on the free list any article in the manufacture of which more than 10 percent of the workmen engaged in production work over 8 hours a day.

The motion was declared out of order and Mr. Martin and minority leader Mann appended to the decision of the chairman.

A lengthy debate ensued. The house finally sustained the decision of the chair and consideration of other amendments proposed.

Without passing upon the measure as such, the senate committee on public health today adopted an amendment to Senator Owen's bill creating a department of public health to provide official for a bureau and to prohibit discrimination against any school of medicine or method of healing.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor before the senate committee on education and labor today attacked manufacturers in general because of their opposition to the establishment of an 8 hour work day.

Mr. Gompers declaring nothing would give a greater impetus to industry and to the extension of trade than the 8 hour day.

He also insisted that it would better the relations between employer and employee.

Representative Henry of Texas chairman of the house committee on rules which recently conducted a hearing on the proposed investigation of the money trust today declared himself in favor of such an inquiry.

This being the 53rd birthday anniversary of the emperor of Germany, President Taft has elected to forgo a message extending hearty congratulations.

RAILWAY COMMISSION PERMITS BOND ISSUE

Authorizes Milwaukee, Sparta and Northwestern Road to Issue Fifteen Millions in Securities.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—The state railroad commission has authorized the Milwaukee, Sparta and Northwestern road to issue fifteen million dollars in bonds, the proceeds to apply on the payment of the road construction.

The road is one hundred and seventy-five miles long. The commission also authorized the Chicago and North Western road to guarantee the issue and has granted a certificate permitting it to purchase the Milwaukee, Sparta and Northwestern, including the Princeton and Western railway company.

NEW YORK BANKS SHOW DECIDED INCREASES IN WEEK.

New York, Jan. 27.—The statement of the clearing house banks for the week shows the banks hold $45,988,000 reserve in excess of legal requirement. This is an increase of $8,706,000 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week.

BOTH PARTIES COMBINE TO DEFEAT THE SOCIALISTS

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—Dr. G. A. Milwaukie, republican, Joseph P. Carney chosen by republican and democrat city committees as coalition primary candidates for mayor and comptroller, respectively at the coming primary, today signed an agreement pledging themselves to disregard party politics of any kind in the administration of public business if elected.

The candidates promise to work in the interests of an amendment to the charter providing for nonpartisan city elections and also promised greater economy and better service.

PESSIMISTIC VIEW CAUSES STOCK SLUMP

Railway Securities Take Sudden Drop Following Statement by Roosevelt Miller of St. Paul Road.

New York, Jan. 27.—Roosevelt Miller, chairman of the board of directors of the St. Paul road today issued the following statement:

"We can hope for better earnings from crops during the next fiscal year, but there is no prospect of improvement in general conditions; and in addition to the decreased volume of merchandise and manufacturing commodities, there is the continued reduction of rates and high cost of labor."

Mr. Miller's statement was the signal for an outburst of selling in railway stock on the stock exchange and the market broke badly.

MORE TESTIMONY ON MARGINS AND PRICES

Stegner G. Langher Under Cross Examination, Given Valuable Information as to Packers' Business Dealings.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Cross examination of Stegner G. Langher, margin clerk of the National Packing Company by Attorney John Barton Payne, to show the varying margins and selling price of different cuts of beef from the same plant, sold in different cities, was continued in the packers' trial today.

The witness read long lists of shipments, showing the weights, margins and selling price of beef sent from the Chicago, St. Joseph, Mo., Kansas City and Omaha plants of the National Packing Company to eastern cities.

LORD CHURCHILL'S VISIT TO BELFAST WILL BE BIG EVENT

Liberal Party Planning for Big Demonstration Even Though Lord of Admiralty Will Not Speak.

Belfast, Ireland, Jan. 27.—The liberal party, hoping to a report current here, to compensate Winston Spencer Churchill, the first lord of the admiralty, for the disappointment of his plans in regard to speaking in favor of home rule in Ulster.

The military authorities in Dublin have arranged to send troops here both from the capital and other points should there be any need for the maintenance of order.

Conservatives in Favor.

London, Jan. 27.—Hillier Ballou, former liberal member of parliament, in a speech today, declared that he was actually in a certain newspaper office when orders came from an authoritative quarter of the conservative party to demand home rule in 1910.

This happened just before the general election at the time when part of the unionist trust were already writing in favor of home rule all around.

MACFARLAND TRIAL WILL START MONDAY

Case Against Newark Advertising Man Accused of Poisoning His Wife is to be Pondered in Supreme Court.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 27.—The trial of Allison M. MacFarland, the Newark advertising man, accused of the murder of his wife, Evelyn, who was found dead October 18 last, from cyanide poisoning, is to begin Monday morning before Chief Justice Gunn.

The trial will reopen the case, which bears such a strong resemblance to the Crippen murder in London, that interested the whole world a year ago.

MacFarland, who is 34 year old, was the advertising manager of a large electrical concern here. He, his wife and two children moved to Newark early last summer from New York.

On the morning of October 17, according to statements alleged to have been made by MacFarland to the police, he and his six-year-old son went to the theatre in New York.

Next morning upon his return home MacFarland found his wife's body lying across the bed and their two-year-old daughter playing around it.

To the police MacFarland admitted; they allege, that he brought home cyanide of potassium, which an autopsy later showed caused his wife's death.

MacFarland declared that he had put the cyanide in a bottle which had formerly contained bromide—a drug which his wife took frequently to relieve headaches. It was his intention, he said, to clean up the bottle with cyanide, and then place a poison label on the bottle, he set it for safe-keeping near the spot where his wife kept her bromide.

The police allege that the deadly poison was placed purposely within Mrs. MacFarland's reach by her husband, and that she took it, as he intended she would, in mistake of bromide. It is the theory of Prosecuting Attorney Wilbur Mott that the motive of the murder is to be found in MacFarland's alleged anxiety to marry Miss Florence Hoxley of Philadelphia. (The prosecuting attorney is said to have in his possession a score of letters from Miss Hoxley to MacFarland, in one of which she says: "I am happy I will approach of the time when I will have your wife.") MacFarland is alleged to have become infatuated with Miss Hoxley when she worked as his stenographer in Philadelphia.

EFFORT TO PROTECT S. A. E. AGAINST LOSS ON BONDS

State Treasurer Danks is Sending Notices to Banks to Have Gold Bonds Renewed.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—To insure the steady market for low through the sufficiency of the securities on bonds held by the state, State Treasurer A. H. Danks is sending notices to banks whose bonds have become old, to have them renewed. It appears that some of the securities may not be worth the face value unless renewed.

Presidents of the National Bankers' Association must be alive and in good financial condition to comply with the treasury's rules in this respect.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Cross examination of Stegner G. Langher, margin clerk of the National Packing Company by Attorney John Barton Payne, to show the varying margins and selling price of different cuts of beef from the same plant, sold in different cities, was continued in the packers' trial today.

THE PRESIDENT LEAVES ON A FIVE DAYS' JOURNEY.

TILLMAN IS SILENT ON WATSON CASE

ONLY SAYS THAT IF WATSON HAS PROOFS HE OUGHT TO PUBLISH THEM.

EDITOR AGAIN TALKS

Would Show Senator Proofs of His Authorization to Collect Campaign Funds for Wilson.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The Tillman-Hursey-Watson episode held the attention of all Washington today and the South Carolina Senator's reply to the Kentucky editor's "challenge" was awaited with interest.

Senator Tillman did not reach his office until late in the forenoon when he indicated that an answer would be forthcoming.

In the meantime Col. Watson added fuel to the fire with an additional statement in which he said:

"In my letter to Senator Tillman I promised proof of any statement made by me which might be disputed. Wilson denies that I had any authorization from him or any agent of his to raise money for his campaign."

"I have the proofs that I not only have an authorization but that I actually raised a considerable sum. I hold myself ready to furnish this proof to Senator Tillman at once if he will do me the honor personally to call upon me as I am confined to my hotel and cannot call upon him."

Senator Tillman's single avowal after inspecting this proof be either equivocal or insufficient. I propose that Gov. Wilson name two confidential firms, I naming two, the four to name a fifth and this court of gentlemen to determine the issue between us."

"I must insist that this be done without delay as I shall have to leave Washington next Tuesday night, to fill important engagements elsewhere."

Senator Benjamin R. Tillman declined to reply to Col. Watson's demand to "challenge" in connection with the Watson-Tillman-Hursey-Wilson controversy.

"If Colonel Watson has any proofs of what he says, he ought to publish them. I have nothing more to say."

This was Senator Tillman's only comment. It had been reported earlier in the day that he would make a detailed reply.

Senator Tillman declined to be interviewed further in regard to the incident saying there was no longer any issue between Col. Watson and himself. The issue is now between Gov. Wilson and Col. Watson.

MEETINGS PLANNED TO FIX WAGE SCALE

Expect to Settle Engineers' Demands at Conference Without Difficulty.

New York, Jan. 27.—Conference to consider the demands made by the railway engineers on lines east of Chicago and north of the Ohio river for increased wages to conform with the standard of wages on Western roads will be held here and in other cities the next four weeks.

The railway officials and the engineers expect to effect, without difficulty, a satisfactory wage scale.

MINE WORKERS OPPOSED TO THE BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT

SUFFRAGETTES PLAN TO MAKE HARRCOURT'S LIFE MISERABLE

London, Eng., Jan. 27.—Lewis Harrcourt's life is to be made miserable if the suffragettes can do anything to make it so. In reply to a denunciation Mr. Harrcourt, who is secretary of state for the colonies, reiterated his opposition to woman suffrage and the head of the woman suffrage declared that the women of Great Britain would do all in their power for his downfall. This brand she said was working and he had no sympathy for working women.

BEATON LAUDS BURNS IN STRONG ADDRESS

JANESVILLE MAN GIVES ORATION AT ORCHESTRA HALL, CHICAGO, BEFORE UNITED SCOTTISH SOCIETIES.

HIS GENIUS AS POET

Author of Songs Which Have Become Immortal He Has Left no Characteristic of His Race Unportrayed.

The Rev. David Beaton, M. A. pastor of the First Congregational church of this city, delivered a masterful oration on the subject, "The Genius of Burns," at the charity concert given at Orchestra Hall, Chicago, Thursday evening, under the auspices of the United Scottish Societies of Illinois. Dr. Beaton is considered one of the best scholars and students of Scottish literature and his appreciation of Scotland's favorite poet as given at the meeting Thursday is of more than passing interest. It is given below:

"What is genius? we may ask; but no satisfactory definition is at hand. It is generally regarded as that quality and force of mind which expresses itself in the grandest achievements of the creative imagination. This applies to works of art, government, war, science and even commerce. For the essential characteristics of genius, its idealism and creative energy, may be displayed in all these various forms of mental activity. Any work of beauty or power displaying original and spontaneous invention and charms may be called a product of genius. It is not an accidental eruption of erratic and abnormal force, but nature's finest flower, her ripest fruitage; the stream of life flowing from the depths of the gifted springs of our race to refresh and fructify the souls of all mankind. It may possess a variety of accidental features, but its essence is this unbroken, native, elemental fire of creative energy which fuses the shapeliest objects in its environment and moulds them into forms of grace and beauty for the instruction and delight of man.

"To enable us to form an intelligent estimate of the place of poetic genius and especially to see the place of distinction where stands the name we honor tonight, recall, for a space, the order of the hierarchy of genius, for as one star differs from another star in glory, so do the gifted ones in the firmament of the mind. Lowest in their ladder of fame we may place the captains of industry and masters of the physical resources of nature and commerce. Then come the discoverers and inventors in the realms of science and its useful products. Above these would stand the great military chiefs of the race. While at a far remove above them come the philosophic thinkers, seers, prophets and apostles of the dominant religions of the world. Highest of all we must place the artists, the creative geniuses properly so called, the masters of painting, music, sculpture, architecture and literature. Now it is in this highest rank, but in a place of honor that the poets stand. These are the archangels of genius such as Homer, Dante, Shakespeare, Milton, Goethe and Scott. In virtues of the wealth of their endowment and the permanence of their work they outrank all others. For such poets are at once discoverers and prophets of all new truth, apostles and emancipators from the old tyranny of superstition and customs that strangle the aspiring soul. They are the sweet singers of the things of the spirit, the master hands that sweep the responsive strings of the human mind, evoking its mighty music of pity, courage, love and hope.

"The poet also is fortunate in the medium in which he works. The sculptural colors and lines of paintings will fade, while the masterpieces of sound require an expert interpretation but the poet speaks in the mother tongue of the people, close to the heart of the racial feelings and ideals. He sings over the cradle, pours his passion into the ear of love, and whispers the prayer of faith and hope into the soul of penitence, and all in the form of an art which is nature's best and most enduring medium for the expression of the experiences and aspirations of the human soul. And this perfect artistic medium can be multiplied a million times, coming out not as a copy of some great original but the latest impression is an original itself, so that the peasant's penny chapbook has all the charm and fire, and wit and beauty of the illuminated manuscript of the prince.

"The poet then, is the supreme genius of the race, his work is the most perfect art, and his message the choicest and richest gift that heaven bestows upon mankind. To appreciate him and his work is the high privilege of all sincere, believing and kindly souls, for he is the universal teacher, confined to no caste, color or condition of life. In this order of the archangels of song, and not among the lowest, stands the peasant bard of Scotland, Robert Burns. How may we justify this high estimate of his gifts and work of our national bard? Because in a world he was and is our representative man. As the poet has always been the representative genius of his race and civilization, as Homer was of Greece, as Dante of Italy, as Shakespeare of England, so Burns was of Scotland. He may not possess the wealth of poetic invention of Homer, nor Dante's elevation of moral purposes, nor Shakespeare's infinite variety of creative power, but in the sheer depth of his human sympathies, in his pity and powerful influences on the realities of life, in his humor, passion, passion and even moral sanity of outlook, he surpasses them all. If he has not epic grandeur, nor subtle mystic depths, nor dramatic modesty, he has the sweetest and tenderest lyric music that ever sang itself into the soul of man. Continued on page seven.

JOHN TUCKWOOD DIED IN CHICAGO THURSDAY

Musical Well Known to Three Generations of Janesville People Passes Away.—Remains to be Interred Here.

John Tuckwood, a musician known to three generations of Janesville people, hundreds of whom have danced to the music of his skillfully played violin, passed away in Chicago at ten o'clock Thursday night. His remains will be brought to this city over the Northwestern railway at noon tomorrow and will be taken directly to the chapel in Oak Hill cemetery where funeral services will be held at 12:30 o'clock.

Mr. Tuckwood left Janesville twelve years ago and has made his home there ever since. He was formerly a member of the Bower City band and is also a member of the local chapter of the G. A. R. and the Modern Woodmen.

Mary L. Hultman. The remains of Mrs. Mary L. Hultman were taken to Delavan for interment this morning, following a brief service conducted by the Rev. J. C. Hazen at the home of her son, Robert, at 9:15 o'clock. The funeral party left on the 10:50 train over the St. Paul road. The pallbearers were P. G. Walsh, P. M. Blakely, P. D. Shawson, and P. Hurd.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

The principal of the Green County Training school, Professor C. L. Dietz, visited our school on Friday, and pronounced the work as being up to the standard and successful. Mr. Dietz spoke to the students at the afternoon session on the subject of economy and efficiency in school work.

The class in agriculture is using bulletins issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture, and also by the state university. This class is doing some practical work in germinating seeds, etc. We hope to get out of doors to study trees, flowers, birds, etc., in the spring. This work cannot be made of too practical a character if it is to prove valuable to rural school teachers.

Miss Jacobson, one of our efficient teachers, has been obliged to be out of school all of this week owing to the serious illness of her father. Miss Hultman has taught part of the classes this week.

We were pleased to see Supt. Duell, Tuesday afternoon, for a little while. The graduating class is now spending regular periods each day in observing the work in the grades. They are finding this very profitable. Miss Alice Lowery has been giving us some very acceptable music on her violin this week. Several of our girls play the piano.

ACORN DIET PROVES FATAL

Seventy Head of Cattle on One Estate Killed by Eating Fruit of Oak.—Pheasants Thrive on Them.

London.—During the past few days 70 cattle belonging to J. Bishop of Laughton, Shropshire, have died through eating acorns. The cattle were grazing in a field in Aquilino park, Staffordshire, belonging to Sir William Douglas, where acorns were very plentiful. The loss to Mr. Bishop is estimated at nearly £1,000. Several cows belonging to other farmers in the neighborhood have died from the same cause.

From the Henley-on-Thames district, where a number of cattle died through eating acorns, further cases were reported. One beast died, and three were found dead in a field some miles distant. An examination of one of them revealed two bushels of acorns.

Many farmers in South Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire have cattle lying seriously ill from the same cause, while many cases of cattle dying have been reported recently, notably from the Newbury district of Berkshire and the Market Drayton district of Shropshire.

Cattle in many districts have died from eating acorns, which are exceptionally plentiful this year. In a few districts sheep also have suffered, but on the other hand, many farmers have found that both cattle and sheep have fattened on daily rations of acorns. It has been found that the best method is to let the cattle and sheep have daily access to fields where there are acorns, because the animals then eat the acorns as they fall and cannot devour too many or eat too quickly. On the other hand, if there is already a store of acorns under the trees, or if excessive amounts of collected acorns are given to the cattle, digestive troubles are at once set up and in many cases the animals die.

It is a curious fact in connection with acorns as a food for ducks, which usually fatten rapidly on this food, that this year they will not eat acorns. The reason probably is that the acorns are of such an enormous size, and this fact may also have some influence in causing the trouble with the cattle. Although ducks will not eat acorns, pheasants are eating them, with unusual gusto, and early in the morning one may see the spaces underneath the oaks quite thick with pheasants.

troubled with a peculiar spasmodic affection of the throat. It would seize me suddenly and for a few minutes I would be unable to speak audibly, and my breath would be greatly interfered with. I would be obliged to gasp for breath.

"I finally concluded that it was some catarrhal affection which probably excited the spasm. It interfered with my vocation as a preacher, attacking me occasionally in the pulpit. 'I had heard so much about Peruna as a catarrh remedy that I determined to try it. After taking two bottles my trouble has disappeared. I feel sure that Peruna has greatly benefited me.'

Absorb Water Through the Skin.
Experiments have been made with frogs which tend to show that those animals rapidly absorb water through the pores of the skin. Emphasis is laid by certain authorities upon the fact that frogs never take water by the mouth. On being exposed for several hours to dry air some frogs experimented with lost 14 per cent. of their weight, but this was nearly all regained within 21 hours when they were placed in a dish containing water only one centimeter in depth.

Tender Feet.
When the feet become tender from excessive use so that standing or walking is an affliction, a footbath of strong salt water will prove most beneficial. Bathing the soles of the feet and ankles with toilet water is refreshing.

Education in Iceland.
Icelanders are now famous for their high standard of education. Every child of ten in this remote little land can read and write, neither abject poverty nor important wealth is seen, and crime is rare; and the latest step in the evolution of this remarkable people is the founding of a university at the capital.

Appreciative Tourist.
A lady distinguished as a society leader in New York recently made an extensive motor tour through France, and on her return to America she was asked how she enjoyed the trip. After recounting other pleasures she said, "But my most delightful experience was hearing the French 'pheasants' sing the 'Mayonnaise'!"

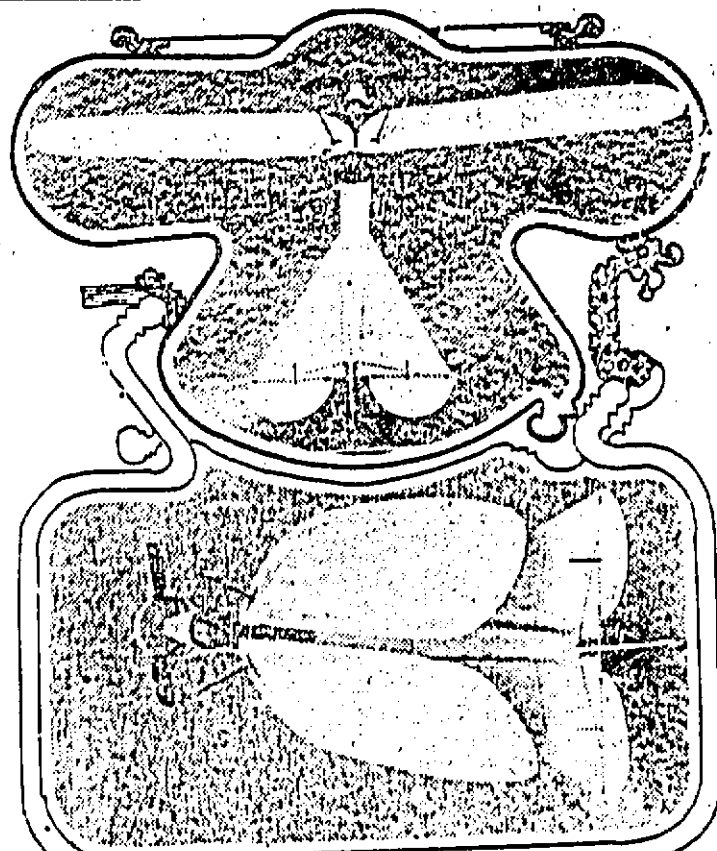

QUEEN'S PHILANTHROPY.
London, England.—One of the most interesting and unusual philanthropies in the world is just being inaugurated here in the interest of the laboring girls. Through the co-operation of all ladies whose first name is Mary, a fund which yields an annual revenue of over $70,000, was donated to Queen Mary and she in turn devoted the monetary portion to a "charitable object in which I am greatly interested." The Queen's plan has now been announced by the establishment of a holiday home for working girls of London. For this purpose the trustees have acquired Barn House, Whitstable on the English coast. The above reproduction of both Barn House and of the finely carved door gives an idea of the interesting surroundings in which the working girls of London will spend their holidays. It is a picturesque building pleasantly situated by the sea, with a large orchard, garden, and lawns for tennis and croquet. It will accommodate about fifteen girls at a time, selected from the fifty clubs belonging to the London Girls' Club Union, whose aggregate membership is between four and five thousand. The girls chosen for two or three weeks' holiday at Whitstable will be those most urgently in need of rest and recreation.

CARDINALS DEFEATED
IN CLOSE, HARD GAME

New York Nationals Outclassed Lakota Cardinals in Game Ending With Score 27-38 in Their Favor.

Spectators at the rink last night witnessed one of the fastest games which it has been the privilege of Janesville basketball fans to see in the city for some time, when the New York Nationals defeated the Cardinals by a score of 27 to 38. Although the score was in favor of the visitors the Cardinals made their fight for every basket and only their remarkable basket-shooting won the game as the Janesville boys were their equals in fast and snappy team work throughout the game. But the Nationals outscored the Cardinals in every position and the center was able to out-jump Hemming, which gave them a decided advantage. Besides being in the game every minute the Nationals seemed to play stronger at the end of the half than they did at the start, and secured a large number of their goals within a few minutes of the end of the first half.

Neither side was able to score for several minutes after the beginning of the game and it was some time before Brunner made the first basket, which was soon followed by another by Buckert. Then after some fast team work, Cunningham secured a goal for the Cardinals. In a short, hard sport the Nationals then secured three more baskets, resulting at the 10 point until the Cardinals had made four more, tying the score. For some unknown reason the spectators' business seemed to end right at this point and the Cardinals made such good use of the ball that the half ended with twenty points in their favor to eleven for Janesville.

James for the locals was the stellar light of the first half with three goals to his credit. Although the visitors played hard and fast the Cardinals were ready for them in any kind of way and the Nationals did not make their toughness count very much in their favor.

During the last half the play was more even and the score ended 17 to 19, against the Cardinals, who also displayed some of the ability to out-jump at top speed. Langdon and Cunningham got into the game during this half even better than they had in the first, and after a few goals had been landed for the visitors the locals had the best of the game. Langdon's playing marked the half, as twice during a short period he ran the ball the full length of the floor and shot baskets. Green played his usual hard game every minute of the time and was on his man and into the team work all the time. Hemming made one difficult basket and got into the game with considerable good work. The Nationals were a superior team and the local boys are to be congratulated upon the fight which they put up against heavier men who drew the applause of the spectators by their spectacular basket-throwing. They were able to score with a sureness which kept the Cardinals on their mettle every minute. Although they were outscored, the Cardinals came in for a large part of the applause as well as most of the encouragement from the spectators for their accurate throwing and close guarding. Altogether it was an excellent game throughout and Janesville has good reason to be proud of its team. The lineup and scores, last night were as follows:

Janesville Pos. New York
Jones P. Schmelke
Cunningham C. Smythe
Hemming G. Buckert
Langdon F. Doyle
Green F. Brunner
Field goals: Schmelke, 7; Smythe, 5; Jones, 4; Cunningham, 4; Langdon, 3; Buckert, 3; Doyle, 1; Brunner, 1; Hemming, 1. Free throws: Jones, 3; Cunningham, 1; Schmelke, 2. Referee—Sennett.

EVANSVILLE DEFEATS
LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Association Team Defeated by Boys Who Were Eadly Eaten Here—Small Gymnasium Hinders Locals.

At Evansville last night the local Y. M. C. A. was defeated by a score of 22 to 15 in a close-fought game, hampered by the small gymnasium and a new floor the Janesville boys were unable to secure more than fifteen points and confined their efforts to preventing the Evansville team from making goals. Although the cut-off city life had been looking for a fight ever since they were so badly defeated here, they played a clean game throughout and almost no fouls were called on either team. Captain Reed did not enter the game as he is suffering from an injured ear, and Ryan took his place at left guard. The lineup was as follows:

Janesville Pos. Evansville
Wilson P. Gillies
Porter C. McDaniel
McDonald G. Collins
Brown F. Lee
Ryan F. Holmes, Graham

CURED BY UNITED DOCTORS.

SPECIALISTS HAVE MADE MANY
CURES IN JANSVILLE.

Mrs. C. M. Hall before being cured by the United Doctors who have their Janesville Institute in the Hayes bldg. corner of Milwaukee and Main streets, had a unique experience in being treated for an ailment that apparently neither she or the doctors who formerly treated her knew.

About a year ago Mrs. Hall was taken ill with severe attacks which rendered her unconscious six hours from 9 A. M. until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. From then on these attacks became very frequent and she grew worse. Speaking of her former troubles she says: "I would lose consciousness completely and not know a thing going on until I came to. I took different doctors' treatment all the time and continued to grow worse. Other ailments began to manifest themselves including stomach trouble. I went to the United Doctors and stated my ailment to the physician in charge and after a careful examination he said he understood my case and that I could get well. My present excellent condition proves that he was right for since starting the remarkable United Doctors' treatment, I have not had one attack, my head clear and I feel excellent. The other doctors did not seem to know what ailed me, for in spite of my repeated requests to know my ailment they put me off and did not tell me and I continued to grow worse. I cannot say too much for the United Doctors. I found they not only gave me the fairest and best of treatment, but best of all cured me, whereas all other doctors failed. I want this made as public as possible as it will probably renew hope for many who now think themselves incurable. I hope the impressive practice the institute already has will become even larger."

JACK BESSEY COMPANY

Jack Bessey, the popular actor comes to the Myers Monday January 29, and will offer theatre goers of Janesville only such comedies and dramas which triumph over all others ever seen here at popular prices. The plays produced are only such plays as contain wholesome humor, genuine interest and those qualities which appeal to the better class of theatre goers. Jack Bessey, the author, playwright and actor is fast winning a reputation which places him on a high pinnacle in the stock company world. The opening play on Monday January 29th is the most beautiful story which will find terday Afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon after school the Rusk Lyceum basketball team were successful in defeating the Forum by a score of 27-2. Both teams put up a good game although the Rusk team, which contained nearly all of the regular school team, were the better players. Free throws were made by the critics of each society. McMurray making three out of three, and Mr. Arbutnot making one out of four. Cunningham and Edler starred for the Rusk while Palmer and Ryan were the stellar lights of the Forum boys. The lineup and scores were as follows:

Forum.
Rusk Cunningham, 11; Edler, 1; Palmer, 1; Arbutnot, 1; Ryan, 1; French, 1.
Field goals: Rusk, 5; Cunningham, 4; Edler, 3; Ryan, 1; French, 1.

the stage. This play was written, produced and copyrighted by Jack, and he will be seen in the leading role of this most pleasing play. The characters of the play are real people whose troubles and whose joys are as real as the comedy and pathos which invariably begets laughter and tears. "The Sweetest Girl of All," is regarded by all who have seen its beautiful story, and in all cities where the said Bessey company has played, joined together and bestowed much favorable comment on the play and the excellence of the organization. It's for you to see at the Myers, Ladies Free Monday Night. "There's a reason."

"A HOUSE DIVIDED."

Mrs. Harriet Orla Holmstrom, who has one of the chief roles in "A House Divided" which comes to Myers Theatre Saturday, Jan. 27, matinee and evening says:

"I always wanted to go on the stage but was never allowed to until after my marriage. My first opportunity was out of a clear sky. Felix Morris asked me to play leading roles with him in repertoire, when he went out for two years as a star. I was with him both seasons, playing at least in fifteen roles. Then for domestic reasons I left the stage for several years, returning unexpectedly ten years ago when Annie Russell asked me to play the kleptomane mother in "The Girl and the Judge." From that Mr. Clyde Fitch came to me in "The Girl With the Green Eyes," and in consequence I played in "Secret of Pichinella," "Business is Business" with Vin. H. Crane—"The Man of the Hour," which ran for two years in New York, and I had the great pleasure of being one of the members of the New Theatre Co., of New York, playing in "Sister Beatrice," "Vanity Fair," "Strife," "The Thunderbolt" and "Don."

"There has never been the time I want to stop acting. Each play has led to new interests. My husband being both painter and writer, has sympathized with the interest I have in art, though the stage is a foreign land to him. No member of my family has ever been an actor, so my love for the work would seem to be a spontaneous creation, not an inheritance."

although no definite arrangements have as yet been made for it. It is not known whether the game will be in that city or here, but it is thought that it will be there. Coach McMurray has been in communication with them within a few days and may be able to secure the game at that time.

Forgiveness of Children.
It is the sweet and entire forgiveness of children, who ask pity for their sorrows from those who have caused them, who do not perceive that they are wronged, who never dream that they are forgiving, and who make no bargain for apologies—it is this that men and women are urged to learn of a child.—Alice Meynell.

TO PROSPECTIVE CANDIDATES.

The coming primary election is likely to put in the field a large number of candidates, as any man has a right to aspire to the office of either mayor or commissioner, who feels so inclined. It will be necessary for these men to get before the people, and for their information and convenience the Gazette publishes the following brief form of announcement which occupies about one inch of space. The charge for inserting this notice is 25 cents each issue, cash with order. No account will be opened with candidates.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for.....at the coming primary election, and I solicit the support of the voters.

(Signed).....
The Gazette has no names to suggest, and will support no man for office before the primary election.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"Old man Stubbles has a face That seems always out of place. When he hears a merry quip, Never winks nor moves a lip. Toward a smile, he'll sit an stare With a stern, forbidding air. 'Till he's all alone, an' then Laugh again an' yet again."

"When a hard-luck tale draw nigh He was never known to sigh. Sympathetic-like an' nice, With a chuck of good advice, But when he's alone he'll take Pen in hand for old time's sake An' write out a check or two, Helpin' some poor feller through."

"Those who meet him stand a daddo Talkin' 'bout his wondrous pride An' his dominionin' way, 'Cold an' cranky,' they all say, 'Cause his good deeds rest unknown. An' that's why, when he's alone He is laughin' at the jokes That he plays on all us folks."

Characters, like "Old man Stubbles," are as rare as they are beautiful, and yet every now and then they are met in life's busy thoroughfares. Men and women so modest and unassuming that they attract no attention, and their closest friends seldom approach them.

The age in which we live is an age of publicity, and people who pose as philanthropists are advertised as freely as a new breakfast food, and much more peremptorily.

The name of Andrew Carnegie, with his libraries and modests, is heralded around the world as the soul of liberality and the greatest philanthropist of his generation, but the old man has simply given away his income, during the past ten years, and only last week expressed regret that he sold out to the United States Steel Corporation for $100,000,000, less than his holdings were worth.

The donations of men like Carnegie and Rockefeller are helpful, because of their magnitude, but the best philanthropist of this or any other country are the men who build our railroads and factories and help people to help themselves through personal effort.

This class of men are also in the limelight just now through being hailed in court to answer to the charge of law-breakers and all because of pernicious activity due to an overdose of reform.

The thought that the Steel company, the Harvester company, the railroads or the packers are criminals is not tenable, and would never have gained prominence but for muck-raking publicity.

In the case of the packers the nation has met with distinctive loss, with no prospect of anybody being the father. Previous to the boycott, but an American meat by Great Britain, the firm of Swift and company was shipping abroad seventeen cars a day. This was their share of the foreign trade, but it only represented fourteen per cent of American shipments. In other words, the old world was using close to one hundred cars a day of our meat products. This great volume of business has fallen off to three cars a week, and while this country may not be as rich as a result, the farmer will be the loser.

The packers have made money. Why shouldn't they? With the hundreds of millions invested, backed by the best brains of the country, they have done more to develop the west than all the Carnegies and Rockefellers that ever lived. Two of these big packing houses are located in the city of Oklahoma, on land that was a wilderness, a few years ago, and would be a wilderness still but for the enterprise of railroads and captains of industry who had the courage to draw on the future and take the chances.

When this crazy era of agitation and litigation blows over, and the people take time to think, they will wonder what possessed them.

But "Old man Stubbles" is neither a Carnegie, a packer, nor a great financier. He is just an extraordinary specimen of common humanity who prides himself on being on the off side of many propositions, and yet whose heart is right—a sort of David Harum character, found in every community.

This sort of people may or may not belong to the church—usually not. They are so intensely orthodox that they have a creed of their own, and it is liable to date back through several generations. They have no sympathy with cant or hypocrisy, and regard with suspicion the man who makes a loud profession of either piety or honesty.

These people never sit in the front end of the car to do business with the conductor, because they labor under the peculiar notion that a railroad is entitled to be paid one hundred cents on the dollar, the same as a grocery man or a church treasurer.

They practice a code of old-fashioned honesty as rare as it is refreshing in these days when the most of us are satisfied with approaching the ideal.

They never head a subscription list for any charity, but along down the column you will find "A Friend," with a substantial amount opposite the prefix.

A cyclone sufferer came into the office, not long ago, and said: "I would like to know the name of the man who gave my wife ten dollars the last time the relief committee was out in our territory." Just another "Old man Stubbles" character, who happened to be along, and who spent the day making people happy in a modest way.

A poor family over in your neighborhood is supplied with fuel and food, not through county or city aid, or because some organization is interested in the case, but because some "Old man Stubbles" is out on a mission, and so afraid someone will find him out that it disturbs his dreams.

The highest order of service for the Master is human service. The God who created worlds and who holds the system steady on its course, needs neither advice nor help in the realm where He reigns supreme. But His creatures, in the domain which we occupy, are full of needs and surrounded with all sorts of conditions.

The work of redemption may be a part of the divine plan, and the heaven of the future may be as real as the world of today, but the great mission of life is not to gain heaven through the passport of some creed, regardless of how we get there.

There is nothing supernatural about human wants and human needs, and there is nothing supernatural about the way these wants are to be met. The man who prays for the poor must go out and answer his own prayer, or induce someone to help him, or he will be disappointed.

The "Old man Stubbles" characters are liable to be short on a praying vocabulary, but they are long on works, and frequently aid in answering the prayers of the more devout.

ESPOUR THE MOMENT

The next one, Bridget was her name. An old hand at the household game. For two days all was quite serene. Then came a most distressing scene. She left us with an angry glare. When asked to shake the parlor rug. Then Pansy came; then, fair Lucille. Then Amy, Daisy and Camille. Our wand now runs every day.

It really is the only way. We'll try them all out while they last And stick till the parade has passed.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY

The commissioner of patents has handed down a decision to the effect that Esperanto is a language. It really does sound more like a breakfast food or a hair remedy.

Andrew Carnegie's income is now $44,000 a day. Mr. Carnegie is one of the few in the country who can still afford to have bacon for breakfast.

Dr. Cook has decided to do all his lecturing in American boreholes. This adds to the great debt of gratitude which Europe already owes us.

Mrs. Pundhurst laughs at Oshkosh because it has a funny name. Yes, it is almost as funny as Pundhurst.

England has now the largest battleship afloat and hopes to hold that title until the end of the present week, at least.

One thing sure, if those steel trust magnates do go to jail the warden will have to do much hawtelling. The astronomer at Flagstaff, Ariz., has discovered a heavy frost on Mars. Maybe Dr. Cook is giving a lecture there.

The per capita circulation in this country is now $24.35. But that will hardly buy coal for the winter.

Dr. Wiley has been asked to find out what hush is. But hush is liable to be anything.

ACCORDING TO UNCLE ABNER

In some of the remote corners of this country there are still folks who are trying to win a solid gold watch by guessing how many beans there are in a given jar.

There never was a time when there were so many folks in this country looking for trouble and so few getting it.

Mrs. Hank Higgins of our town is perfectly up to 'go on the stage and be an actress. After she has been divorced once more, she thinks she will be well qualified.

Amateur tenors came about half of the misery in this world and squaky phonographs cause the other half.

Most of the young lady pianists who say they can't play nothing much are telling the truth.

There is gold to be another case of matrimony in Hickoryville next month when one of our young ladies is going to strike it rich by marrying the proprietor of a movie picture show.

There ain't hardly any fellow nowadays that can't run a typewriter, but there ain't anybody that can run a stenographer.

There was a time when the fellows from this town that went to the city was afraid to look at the electric lights for fear they would put their eyes out.

Hank Pampus has stopped drinkin' a good many times in his life. In fact, he stops every night.

THE FUTURE PRESIDENT

The eyes of fond parents are upon baby girls nowadays instead of baby boys. There used to be a time when parents all hoped that some day their little baby boy might be president of this country, but the day of the surfer is at hand. When the baby girls of today grow up we may have a woman president.

Parents should therefore exercise great caution in naming the little girls. Here are some of the names that would never look well attached to a president of the United States: Lucille, Dora, Gladys, Annette, Cherry, Blanche, Gladys, Sweetie, Lily, Margie, Phyllis, Cecile, Annetta, Ruby, Pearl, Annette, Celia, Queenie, Tricie, Tullie, Maggie, Violet, Lulu, Maudie, Bertha, Nellie, Edna, Grace, Minnie, May, Jennie, Mamie, Flossie, Hortense, Myrtle, Lizzie, Maxie or Hatlie.

Good presidential names for the baby girls are the following: Mary, Helen, Cleopatra, Sapphira, Delilah, Minerva, Catherine, Josephine, Sophia, Rachel, Sarah, Martha, Alexandra, Bridget, Eliza, Hannah, Melissa, Rebecca, Olympia, Elizabeth, Frances, Eve, Tabitha, Virginia, Xanthippe.

A Bishop's Suspenders. Suspenders are modern, decidedly so. There are men still living in South Carolina who remember when an effort was made to discipline the great Bishop William Cyprian of the Methodist church for wearing them. It was contended that in doing so he set a bad example by a display of worldliness.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." Badger Drug Co.

Finally Ascended Mountain.
After years of effort to reach its summit, which lies 6,500 feet above sea level, Mount Rothman, Australia, has at last been conquered by motorists. The other day two motorists climbed up to its highest summit through gum tree forests, and over vast wastes of fern and sand. Fully 100 cars have attempted to climb this mountain but failed. The grades are so sharp that it is difficult in a long pull to lubricate the front cylinders of motors.

Persistent Rocks.
Rocks have built a nest on a telephone pole in a busy thoroughfare in the center of Dover. As soon as the nest assumed any dimensions it fell, or was blown from the pole, and the birds attached it to the insulators. Telephone employees knocked the nest down but, undaunted, the birds set to work and have built again.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
Always give satisfaction because they always do the work. J. T. Shelton, Bremen, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers for kidney and bladder trouble." Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Badger Drug Co.

Your Money Will Buy More For You Here Than in Wall Street

Don't send your money out of town, to Wall street, you won't get as much for it as you will right in your own little town here. That's been proven, is being proven every day. In speaking of Wall street we mean the Bell telephone system of which the local branch is just one of the many tentacles of their monopolistic proposition, reaching out all over the country, pulling the money in from the various communities where they operate and sending it along to Wall street.

You can buy over twice the number of subscribers, when you install a Rock County Telephone in your home as you can when you get the other phone and at the same price, $1.00 a month.

SENSATIONAL DEATH OF BELOIT WOMAN ON AN INTERURBAN

Miss Ada Emerson, School Teacher in the Line City, Ends Life in Presence of Many Passengers.

Slashing her throat from ear to ear inflicting wounds which caused almost instant death, Miss Ada Emerson, a former Beloit school teacher, ended her life in a sensational manner this afternoon shortly after two o'clock on a Rockford Interurban car near the Herlin Works in the Line city.

Miss Emerson has been mentally deranged for some time and has been a patient at the Rockford sanitarium. She was returning to her home in Beloit alone when she evidently became violently insane and took the sensational method of ending her life. A block further on her mother stood waiting for her at the crossing to conduct her to her home.

The conductor of the car which had stopped from the platform to see if the trunk of the St. Paul road which crossed the street near the Herlin works, when he heard the cries of passengers and hastened back into the car to discover the Emerson woman yielding a razor across her face and throat.

Despite his efforts to seize her, she accomplished her desire and was dead almost as soon as her body fell back into the car.

Blood was splashed throughout the car and all over the conductor and motorman, and it was necessary to secure another car to continue the journey to Janesville.

Two women and a half dozen men were passengers at the time of the accident but none of them was to quick for any of them to reach her before she had slashed herself.

Miss Emerson is the daughter of a widow and has several sisters who are school teachers in Beloit.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN CHICAGO

William Street Who Made Janesville His Home in the Eighties Passed Away in Chicago.

This morning's Chicago papers announce the death of William Street, a prominent Chicago attorney and one of the leaders in the prohibition cause in Illinois. Mr. Street was a resident of Janesville from 1881 until 1888, being the law partner of Wilson Lane for some months in the year 1885. In commenting upon him the Chicago Tribune says:

William Street, 64 years old, probably the most influential prohibition worker in Chicago, died yesterday at the Garfield Park Hospital. He had been undergoing treatment for Bright's disease.

He was a frequent prohibition nominee for various offices and always ran ahead of his ticket. In 1904 he received 45,528 votes for Cook county's state's attorney, cutting seriously into the support of both John E. W. Wayman, successful Republican candidate, and Jacob J. Kern, Democratic nominee. He received six times as many votes as any other candidate on his ticket.

Came Here From Scotland
Mr. Street was born in Stirling, Scotland, and came to this country with his parents when he was 7 years old.

His parents lived in Grant county, Wis., and he attended private and public schools until he entered Carroll College at Waukesha, Wis. He was 20 years old when he was graduated from the University of Wisconsin. He earned his way through the schools and colleges he attended, at one time working in a woolen mill, where he became superintendent before he was of age.

Held Many Public Offices.
He was law partner at Watkoush, Wis., of D. H. Sumner, district attorney of Waukesha county. He was elected to the Waukesha city council in 1880, when he moved to Janesville, Wis. Later he was elected city treasurer of Downers Grove, Ill. His offices were with Attorney J. S. McClure, at 35 North Dearborn street.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of a sister, Miss Helen D. Street, 1661 West Adams street, Burial at Rosehill will be private. A widow, Mrs. Edith C. Street, survives. Other relatives are Mrs. W. G. Kendrick and Mrs. A. E. Macartney of St. Paul, Minn.; John A. Street, Salt Lake City; R. W. Street, Michigan City, Ind.; and C. A. Street, brothers.

IS NEARLY DROWNED FISHING FOR MITTEN ON BANK OF RIVER

Paul Holmes, Son of David Holmes of Milton, Had Near Fatal Accident, Paying in Rear of Reid's Store.

Paul Holmes, aged eight years, had a narrow escape from drowning shortly after three o'clock this afternoon while playing in the rear of Archie Reid's store.

He had dropped his mitten from the bank onto the ice and while reaching for it with a stick he fell into the river and had it not been for the prompt work of his companion, Alfred Davy, he would undoubtedly have met his death. The ice broke, carrying the boy in over his shoulders. He was taken into Reid's store where he was soon revived.

CONCRETE WORK ON NEW BRIDGE STARTED

Beginning Now Made in Order That Tubes Can Safely Withstand Pressure of Moving Ice in Spring.

The concrete work in the support of the new Fourth avenue bridge was begun yesterday noon, the largest of the pair of tubes nearest the east bank receiving first attention.

The tubes are filled from the bottom to the top of the piles, a depth of about seven feet. The rest of the concrete to be put in the tube will be mostly above the water level, and the work will wait until milder weather.

The reason for concreting the tubes at this time is to anchor them securely so that they can withstand the pressure of the moving ice in the spring, or a possible breaking during the winter.

Otherwise they would be in danger of being shoved out of position or distorted.

The sand and gravel and water used in the concrete are heated before being turned into the mechanical mixer, and are mixed fairly dry, the proportion of the ingredients being one of cement, three of sand and four of gravel. Some shrinkage takes place in the mixing, leaving the proportion of cement to gravel and sand about one to six. The proportions of the ingredients of the concrete is closely observed by the City Engineer at his table.

The prepared concrete is taken from the mixer in wheelbarrows and sent down through a closed chute. This is kept well filled, and the pressure of the material forces it out below. Dumping the concrete directly into the water would result in the cement particles being washed off the gravel and sand by the time it reached the bottom of the tube. The means used prevents this as the bottom of the chute stands in the liquid concrete.

"Setting" takes place just as rapidly under water as in the open air, contrary to the belief of the uninitiated. It is a chemical action and not a drying one.

Several men have been added to the bridge crew with the beginning of the concrete construction. This will be kept up until all the tubes sunk are filled, with the exception of, course, of the days when the weather prevents that kind of work.

Records are being kept by the City Engineer of the depth to which each pile is driven and the penetration made under the last blows of the hammer. From the data obtained, the load which each pile will carry, can be determined.

EVANSVILLE JUNIORS SPENT MORNING HERE

Large Class of Both Associations Enjoyed Visit This Morning—Basket Ball Played.

About forty members of the Evansville Y. M. C. A. Junior class and the local Juniors met together in the local gymnasium this morning and enjoyed a half day together. After the class work several basket ball teams met and a number of games were played between the representatives of the two teams. At the conclusion of the games each side of the gymnasium was lined with boys and Secretary Charles Atkinson of Evansville, appeared on the balcony with a five pound bag of candy which he threw upon the floor below. An exciting time was the result and every boy had part of the treat although some had more than others when the atmosphere cleared away. The local Juniors plan to return the visit at Evansville soon time soon although nothing definite has been decided on as yet. The Older Juniors had their class this afternoon.

The Eppstein Emerald

Edgar Jepson

MRS. PETER WHITTHESLEY CARTRELL was not an early riser, though he was in that bloom of youth to which such sterling practices are so appropriate. He came quietly along the corridor very late for breakfast; and the shining emerald on the toilet table caught his eye through the open door of the bedroom occupied by Mr. Leopold Eppstein, the grocer prince. It was a large emerald, far too large to adorn a cravat, even the cravat of a millionaire. The Cartrells did not like their guest's emerald. They liked it as a stone, but they did not like it as a story; as a pendant from a necklace they would have found no fault with it. However, Mr. Eppstein was making his entry into society under the Cartrells, and he was resolved to enter unscathed.

At the sight of the emerald Peter paused; his eyes brightened; he walked into the bedroom, and looked around for a hiding place for it. He had no great fondness for practical jokes; his was too kind a heart; but he never lost a chance of a cunning one. With unerring judgment he chose the bottom drawer of Mr. Eppstein's unlocked jewel case, dropped the emerald pin into it, among the jeweled watch chains, and shut the drawer. He came out of the bedroom with his face composed to an expression of serene vacuity, humming softly a tune of triumph.

As he came to the bottom of the wonderful Italian staircase, the chief glory of the Cartrell Court, a band of guests and his stepmother came babbling out of the dining room. Peter greeted them urbanely; then he dashed away from them to wring the small, round Mr. Eppstein's hand warmly and congratulate him on his air of good health. Mr. Eppstein was used to Peter's glad hand. But his closest, cunning eyes, which missed nothing, had observed that his gladness was lavished on no one else. He liked it; but he had a great fear that it hid the borrowings of money.

Peter went into the dining room, nodded to Colonel Brown, who was sitting beside his sister, stroked her chestnut hair, sank into the chair next her, and said, "Well, old girl, how's the sultor this morn?"

"It was blue—peacock blue," said Helen Cartrell in the accents of despair.

"I thought he looked rose pink."

"He is, I mean," said Helen.

"Well, he did not have that beastly emerald in it," growled Colonel Brown, who hated Mr. Eppstein with a rival's hatred.

"He'd only forgotten it. He kept feeling his tie for it all through breakfast; and he's gone to put it on," said Helen sadly.

"Well, as soon as you're married to him you'll have to cure him of his color schemes and buy the emerald," said Peter.

"I won't marry him," cried Helen; but there was a lack of conviction in her tone which did not escape Colonel Brown.

"You will. The governor will back up Mamerulus. He has to, poor governor. There's only one chance for you," said Peter.

"One chance?" said Helen.

"Of course there's just the chance that old Loch-livar may pick up the courage to carry you off in a motor car before it's too late," said Peter.

As he spoke the door opened, and Lord Cartrell came in, holding his beard firmly with one hand; "I say—this fellow—Eppstein, I mean—says he's lost that blasted—that emerald pin of his."

Peter sprang to his feet, upsetting his chair, or rather yelled, "At last I've got the chance! I've always wanted to play at Sherlock Holmes! Where's Eppstein?"

And he rushed past his startled father out of the room. In the middle of the hall stood the grocer prince, telling a growing coterie of guests of his misfortune. Peter rushed at him, wring his hand warmly, and cried, "Never mind, old chap! I'll stand by you! I'll help you! We'll find it!"

Mr. Eppstein took his hand from Peter's clasp with some pertinence, and smiled, "I wouldn't have lost that stone was it ever so? I gave four thousand—four thousand pounds for that emerald. I value it above everything. It was an heirloom."

"I left it in my table! I forgot to put it on; I was late for breakfast," continued the grocer prince.

Peter smote his brow and cried in the triumphant tone of one solving an enigma, "I know! I have it! It's a case of self-communion! You've swallowed it!"

Lord Cartrell's voice rose high in an earnest indignation to Peter not to play the fool. Injured and indignant, deploring the folly of the human race in refusing to be helped, Peter protested that he washed his hands of the matter, and went back to his unfinished breakfast. He left the dining-room door open, however, and heard the interminable administration to Mr. Eppstein by his stepmother, his father, and half a dozen guests in turn. Then the butler was questioned, then the housekeeper. Between them they made it clear that none of the servants could have yet gone near Mr. Eppstein's bedroom.

By this time the grocer prince was once more his bright, organizing self. All his being was strung up to the endeavor to recover his lost jewel. He insisted on wiring at once for a detective, to the bitter annoyance of his hosts. But they could not protest.

The men drifted into the smoking room, discussing the affair. Peter went with them. Lord Cartrell made no secret of his conviction that it was entirely the grocer prince's own fault for wearing an emerald of that beastly size. That had been the view of Lady Cartrell; and Lord Cartrell always took his wife's view. Then Peter began to enlarge on the danger of circumstantial evidence and its tendency to secure the conviction of innocent persons.

Peter went to a group of ladies discussing the lost emerald on the terrace. At once he began to develop again the theme of circumstantial evidence convicting the innocent. They listened to him with an air that grew more and more startled; and at the end of his disquisition their voices rose loud in denunciation of Mr. Eppstein.

In the middle of it Peter left them to meet his stepmother coming from the house. "I'm afraid Eppstein's emerald is well going to spoil your party, Mamerulus," he said.

In a few well-chosen words Lady Cartrell told Peter her opinion of him; from frequent repetition the formula had become practically stereotyped.

On one of the croquet lawns he found Helen and Colonel Brown playing croquet.

"The sultor is not going at all strong at present," said Peter, taking a slow, luxurious pull at his excellent cigar.

Both of them smiled on him kindly.

"So you countermand the Loch-livar motor car. Which of you was going to hire it?" said Peter, turning their smiles to confusion.

"I do think you're silly," said Helen.

"Well, well, you needn't blush quite so hard for my silliness, old girl," said Peter; and he strolled on through the shrubberies, enjoying the peace of the garden.

When he came back to the Court he found its atmosphere all that he had desired. His stepmother's guests had been forcing on one another the most elaborate accounts of their movements before breakfast, with the intention of averting all possible suspicion from themselves; and they were now at the stage of fixing suspicion on the persons they chanced severally to dislike. Some of them were talking of leaving at once; and they were prevented from putting the intention into effect only by the desire to be on the spot to see the upshot of the matter.

The atmosphere oppressed most deeply Mr. Eppstein. He had, to his own thinking, been making admirable progress in this new exalted circle. He had found himself welcome when he joined any group of talkers; and had despised to it. He had observed with pleasure that his hearers hung on his lips. Now all this was changed. He was in the position of the wounded animal expelled from the herd. His fellow-guests had come to Cartrell Court to enjoy themselves, not to express aid and sympathy with persons robbed of emeralds. Moreover, thanks to Peter's disquisition on the danger of circumstantial evidence, he was further shunned as a source of danger. Groups melted when he joined them. Solitary guests tore themselves hurriedly away from him on the slightest pretext.

Darker and darker suspicions filled his mind. He saw himself the victim of a plot; his fellow-guests were in a conspiracy to rob him. He had read many woe-filled stories with a view to obtaining information to guide him along the social path. He had heard from them that society is adventurous and light-fingered. He saw his fellow-guests dividing the proceeds of the sale of his emerald, his beloved emerald. Looking on them in his green light, he became aware that many of them had faces of the criminal type. A great pity for himself filled him; he felt that it was Eppstein against the world, and he could have wept for the lonely Eppstein.

While he was in this forlorn mood Peter descended on him, bland and sympathetic. He bade him cheer up; he foretold with conviction the outwitting of the thief. Mr. Eppstein's heart went out to him. Then when they were firmly established in the position of two generous souls united to right the wrong, Peter said, "How would it be to keep an eye on the gates and see that no one sneaks down to the village to send the emerald away by post?"

"That's a good idea," cried Mr. Eppstein; and without more ado they walked briskly down to the lodges.

There Peter left him, charging him to lure up and down with a careless air, and to let no one near him from his watch on any pretext, assuring him that he would keep his eyes open at the Court. By way of performing that feat he set about a game of croquet with Sybil Cartrell, the prettiest of his stepmother's guests. In the middle of it Colonel Brown came on to the lawn, alone and disconsolate. Lady Cartrell had swooped down on them and carried Helen away.

Presently Peter stepped aside to him and suggested that he might be kind to Mr. Eppstein. He said that he was mooning unhappily about down by the lodges; and painted his forlorn state in affecting terms. Would not the Colonel be a good fellow and bring him back to play a game of billiards? The Colonel had the heartiest devotion of his rival, but he carried a kind heart in his huge frame. He said that he would, and strode off down to the lodges.

There was no one Mr. Eppstein would sooner have suspected than the Colonel, in whom he recognized a serious obstacle to his social advancement by marriage with Helen; and at the sight of him his heart beat fast. He at once suspected him of trying to sneak away with the emerald; and when he heard of his invitation to come to play billiards, his suspicion became certainty. It was an attempt to lure him from his watch. He refused the invitation with an asperity which made the very toes of the Colonel's boots itch to kick him. The temptation was so strong that he had to turn on his heel and depart briskly lest he should succumb to it. He came back to Peter and explained with some heat to what extent Mr. Eppstein's loss had brought out his natural fondness. Peter consoled with him on his repulse, and some twenty minutes later, at the end of his game, he went to the grocer prince.

Assuming a puzzled air, he said, "You haven't by any chance seen Brown?"

"Yes, I've seen him," said Mr. Eppstein darkly.

"Eppstein—did he try to get you away from your post? Did he suggest a game of billiards?" said Peter, reluctantly.

"Yes, he did," said Mr. Eppstein yet more darkly.

"He's been talking to me, too. He seemed quite put out by your refusal," said Peter.

"I saw through it at once," cried Mr. Eppstein, triumphantly. Then, stepping forward, he gripped Peter's arm, fixed him with small, but burning eyes, and said, "That's the man! He's got my emerald!"

"Oh, come now, you don't think that? Brown's the last man in the world!"

"Leopold Eppstein does not think, he knows," said the grocer prince with a splendid air.

Peter was plunged in anxious thought, frowning; then he said, "Well, couldn't you be keeping an eye on him, instead of watching here, if you're so certain? He might slip away through the park."

"By Jove, yes! you're right!" said Mr. Eppstein, starting off at full speed up the drive.

Colonel Brown was walking up and down the croquet lawn, still disconsolate. The house had enwreathed with the difficulty of disposing of the emerald—that now it seemed impossible, that now he knew the way. He was wrong; the Colonel's racial distinctions were due to the fact that he was enjoying a lover's self-communion.

Presently, however, the Colonel was invaded by an uneasy feeling that eyes were on him. He scanned the curtains as he came along; then, with a startling yell, he leaped in among them and extracted the grocer prince by the scruff of the neck.

"What do you mean by dogging me and spying on me, you little bounder?" roared the Colonel, shaking him.

"I—I wasn't!" squeaked Mr. Eppstein.

"Then what were you doing?" roared the Colonel.

"I—I was bird-nesting!"

"Then go and bird-nest somewhere else!" roared the Colonel; and he flung Mr. Eppstein violently from him.

Mr. Eppstein alighted on his hands and knees with a howl, for with unerring accuracy he had struck with his left knee the only pebble on the grassy sward. He rose swiftly, and in an obsequious vein danced out of the shrubbery. He hobbled straight off in search of Lord Cartrell, and came into the smoking room with a stern, determined air. His host's face did not glow with joy at the sight of him.

"I've found the thief!" said Mr. Eppstein.

"Thank goodness! Then we can get the beastly business short. Who is it?" said Lord Cartrell, springing eagerly to his feet.

"Colonel Brown," said Mr. Eppstein.

Lord Cartrell's eyes opened, and his mouth; his nostrils dilated; a slow, deep flush suffused his face.

"There ain't much chance of the criminal's 'aving left anything behind 'im, gentlemen," said the detective, with a profound air.

"Still a systematic search," said Peter.

"Ho, yes! It's a form we always go through," said the detective.

"Are you quite sure you didn't put it away in this jewel case?" said Peter, prodding that object with his forefinger.

"Quite sure. It's no good wasting time with that. I locked it as soon as I found the emerald had been stolen; and I've had the keys in my pocket ever since," said Mr. Eppstein.

"Did you look through it?" said Peter; and he prodded it again.

"Why should I look through it? I've told you the pin was on the table!"

"You'd better just turn out the fool case, sir," said the detective.

With every appearance of warm impatience Mr. Eppstein unlocked the jewel case, opened it, displayed two trays full of jeweled pins, studs, and buttons. Then he drew out the drawer full of watch chains; and the gleaming emerald sparkled up at his astounded eyes.

"Why? What? How? How did it get here?" he gasped; and horror and amazement struggled for the possession of his face.

"Look here!" said Lord Cartrell in a rising voice.

"Do you mean to say you've made this infernal fuss—upset the house—annoyed everybody—accused Brown of theft—and your beastly pin was here all the time. What do you mean by it, sir? What do you mean by it?" He ended in a roar; and an indignant outcry broke from the guests on the threshold.

"I—I can't think! I never put it there! Swear me, I never did!" cried Mr. Eppstein.

The value shined on Lord Cartrell's purple brow as he glared through his guests, as through a football scrimmage, to the head of the window, and roared down it, "Jackson! Jackson! Order a carriage to take Mr. Eppstein to the station! Send up his man to pack at once! At once, do you hear? Do you think I want to be standing here all day?"

He was not really standing; he was dancing heavily.

"Really, Eppstein, you ought to be more careful," said Peter in a pained tone; and he left the perspiring grocer prince mopping his brow in the enjoyment of the feelings of one who has kicked away the ladder by which he is climbing before he has reached his top.

Peter drew Colonel Brown down the stairs with him, after his panting father, and said briskly, "Now's your time! Strike while the iron's hot! Ask the governor's consent now. He'll be dying to take it out of Mamerulus for this upset. Eppstein was her friend."

"Right you are!" said the Colonel with equal briskness; and he followed Lord Cartrell to the smoking-room.

Lord Cartrell received him with an air of savage gloom. "I suppose you want me to apologize for the fellow," he growled. "I can't think that my wife wants such outsiders in the house."

But when he heard the Colonel's business, his face slowly brightened. His infatuation for his wife was for the moment in eclipse; he was burning to be contrary to her dearest wishes; and he gave his consent with a grin. Lady Cartrell came down to him, her headache banished by the discovery of the emerald and the departure of its owner, to learn that her guests had already overwhelmed the lovers with good wishes, and the thoughtful Peter had wired the tidings of their engagement to the Morning Post.

gulfed Helen and seemed unlikely to disengage her. Mr. Eppstein sat on the bank and watched him with the eye of a hawk, until presently he stroled into the shrubbery. Mr. Eppstein sprang from the bank and followed him with what he knew to be the stealthy gait of a sleuth hound. He followed him close; the Colonel soon became aware of his presence, so checking to self-communion, and turned into a path to the right. Mr. Eppstein followed him.

The Colonel stopped short and said, "Which of these shrubberies do you want to walk in, Mr. Eppstein?"

His tone was uncompromising, and Mr. Eppstein said, hastily, "Oh, they're all one to me, Colonel."

"Then I'll walk in the Wellingtonia shrubbery, and you can stop here," said the Colonel; and he left him.

The tone set Mr. Eppstein's heart fluttering. It confirmed his belief that the Colonel meant to steal away. Yet he dared no longer follow him openly. He danced gently first on one foot, then on the other. Then his resolution stiffened, and he stole through the shrubs till he came among the Wellingtonias and in sight of the Colonel walking up and down the lawn. With keen eyes he marked the Colonel's changing face, his brow frowning and growling smooth again, his face plainly that his rival's guilty mind was

Mr. Eppstein marked his shocked amazement with a grim smile.

"You thundering idiot!" howled Lord Cartrell, finding his voice. "Brown? A.V.C.I. My own cousin! A man with five thousand a year! You—you—you miserable Jackson!"

"It's him! It might have been sudden temptation! I've evidence—lots of it!" cried Mr. Eppstein hastily.

"I—I'll break every bone in your body!" howled Lord Cartrell, reaching blindly for the poker. Mr. Eppstein fled with the speed, though hardly the grace of Atlanta; his host sank, gasping into an easy chair.

Lunch was a bitter feast. Mr. Eppstein's emerald might have weighed tons, so heavily did it crush the spirits of the house party. Everyone was hurried to talk of it; no one could, in the glowering presence of its injured owner. Except Peter—Peter kept bursting into the disquisition on the conviction of the innocent by circumstantial evidence.

After lunch Lady Cartrell retired to her bedroom with a natural, but violent, headache. She could therefore give no attention to the matter of keeping Helen and Colonel Brown apart; and in a sequestered corner of the garden they made what hay they could while the sun shone. The burning Eppstein, by now humanity. The fellow-cotter and the statesman-like, the priest-like father, and the joy-bagger, the lads and lasses beneath the scented hawthorn and the comrades around the convivial board all find in his works the wisest, strongest, and kindest expression of their feelings and ideals.

"Burns is all Scotland in epitome. He has told the story of our race; its struggle for civil and religious liberty; our pitiable conscience, and our canny thrift, and our canny humor, and our canny weakness; our canny thrift, and our canny humor, and our shrewd gift of 'getting there.' He has sung in deathless song our pathos of patriotism, dashed with the pathos of frequent exile. He has wounded most deeply our sentimental feelings in his love of nature's little creatures of the field, and the picture of our Scottish landscape with its yellow broom and purple heather on the green and its brown burns and misty mountains. And not the least characteristic of his racial qualities is his dauntless independence and sturdy sense of personal worth, his noble utterance of our national sanity and practical common sense. And to crown all, he has given us and the world, the noblest national anthem, which patriotism ever sang, and the boldest hymn of democracy and universal brotherhood, that ever inspired the soul of bard or saint. 'A Man's a Man for a' That,' is not a song—it is the soul's summons to social emancipation and the charter of our higher manhood.
"Nor must it be supposed that this is the exaggerated claim of Scottish pride and insular prejudice; for Burns, as a poet, is the most widely known and continually loved of all the singers and thinkers of our race. This is true of him not only among the common people of his own and other countries, but among the cultured and the scholarly, among the young and the old. He possesses the qualities of timeliness, of aptness, of reality, of virile strength and manly worth, which are of universal significance. He hits the nail on the head. He touches the heart, he fires the brain, he renews the pregnant will to do and dare all that may become a man. Uniqueness is the quality of his genius. He is understood and appreciated and loved as no other author can lay claim to. I have read and interpreted his lyrics in the logging camps of the Northwest, the mining camps of the Rockies and in the High Schools and colleges, in the churches, Chautauques and concert halls of this country, and by the long rollers of the Pacific coast from San Diego to Vancouver, as well as to the negroes of the South, and no audience that ever met young or old, learned or simple, black or white, plains or prairie, but could see the point of his wit, laugh at his humor, melt with his pathos and exult in his glorious visions of the coming democracy of brotherhood and equality manhood.
"I should be ready to read Burns' claims to immortality in this peerless rank of three things. First his love songs, which let me illustrate by the reading of 'My Nannie O.' Second, his rich sense humor as in the 'Jolly Beggar' and 'Tam O'Shanter' and third, his songs of the democracy and brotherhood in 'The Cotter's Saturday Night' and 'A Man's a Man for a' That.' This makes no mention of his matchless songs of nature like the 'Mouse' and the 'Gowan,' nor his National Anthem 'Scots Wha Hae' nor his tender lyric of 'John Anderson My Jo,' nor his universally accepted voice of friendship and good fellowship 'Auld Lang Syne,' but to name all his themes would be to give a list of the most vital interests in human life. But one little known feature of his work demands a word. Burns is thought of too often as the prophet of the passions, and too seldom as the seer of the better day, the larger minister of human hope. He among the first adequately voiced the social wrongs and disabilities of the tolling masses, and his 'Twa Dogs' contains more of the real thing on luxury, waste, and social inequalities than most modern literature on economics. And best of all, perhaps, he gave us that tender, almost sacred lyric of domestic affection and life long fidelity 'John Anderson My Jo.' As we read its simple lines and serenely, kindly pathos and purity of its sentiments, lift us into a plane of feeling above the object of an earthly affection and it seems touched with a light from the celestial and eternal world."

Fred Mayers went to Hanover on Friday to visit his daughter, Mrs. Anna Emerson and family.

Mrs. Mildred Englebreton returned to her home in Broadhead Friday, after a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. Anna Mitchell.

Mrs. A. C. Rowe was a visitor in Janesville on Friday.

Miss Poppel went to her home in Janesville for a stay of some two or three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Martin returned to Chicago today, after having been called here on account of the death and funeral of his father, Mr. M. P. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stephenson of Janesville, were guests on Friday of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Stephenson.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Roderick of Juda and sister Mrs. R. H. Clifford of Monroe, spent Thursday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Roderick.

Mrs. D. C. Collins was a passenger to Milwaukee Thursday.

The funeral of Mr. S. H. Blake who died on Tuesday afternoon was held today at the home at one-thirty o'clock, conducted by Rev. Jacobs of the M. E. church.

Friends and patrons of the Broadhead Co-operative company will have a picnic dinner in Broadhead's Annex, on Wednesday, February 7th, 1912.

There will be a meeting of the Union Auto club on Monday evening next, at 7:00 at Dr. Fairman's office. All auto owners are requested to attend.

John J. Wescott of Monroe, was a business visitor in Broadhead Thursday morning.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Rose's church will hold a social in Broadhead's Annex on Wednesday evening, Jan. 31st.

Peter Cox returned Thursday to Beloit, after spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. H. D. Galde.

Denny Boylan returned to Beloit Wednesday, where he is the guest of his brother, James.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Heggs returned Wednesday from a visit in Janesville.

How Japanese Speak of Death.
At Osaka-Gori of Iyo province a man's death is spoken of as 'he has gone to Hiroshima to buy cotton.' In the same province the expression changes to 'to go to Hiroshima to buy tea' at Echigori, and to 'to go to Hiroshima to buy tobacco,' at Nigori. In Nagan and Iwami they also say 'he has gone to Hiroshima to buy cotton.' The reason is that the people hate to pronounce the inauspicious word 'death.' But why they have come to limit the unknown destination to Hiroshima remains a mystery. At Nagasaki they say 'he has gone to Naganaki to buy tea' when they want to say a man is dead, but one knows not why Naganaki of all other places has been chosen. In this connection it will be interesting to learn that the Eta in Chikuzen province will bluntly say when they refer to a girl who has been married, 'She has found a place to die at.'

Wonderful Mackerel Catch.
Tim Connors, he of the many jobs and aspirations to be a politician, is being boomed for fish commissioner, says the Chicago Evening Post. Tim claims to have assisted in the catch of as many as 60,000 mackerel at one clip. "It's this way," he says, in recital. "Ye spread a great net and lower a lamp lighted. The mackerel do be a curious lot and they swim up in great numbers to see what the light is for. Lure me your pencil. Now," said Tim, jabbing a piece of paper with the pencil point, "when they crowd around the light they stick their heads through the net. The mackerel has little bits of ears and gets caught by them. He can't rattle his own, not having many baubles."

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

PUT YOUR IDEAL TO WORK.
It is good to have an ideal.

But—Ideals are nothing if they do not lead up to the real. To be worth while they must lead you somewhere and land you somewhere.

This is the test: Try your ideal on. If it is good the results will be good. You can test the tree of idealism by its fruits.

An ideal is a picture in your mind of what is supremely to be desired. It is a vision of what ought to be. And it is an impulse to better things.

An ideal is more than a dream. If you only dream you are not a good idealist. If you dream long and hesitate you are not an idealist at all; you are merely a dreamer waiting for something to turn up. If you are a true idealist you will go out and turn something up.

A true ideal is a big idea that has worked its way down from your head into your heart. It beckons—and leads you to an objective. A true ideal has terminal facilities.

You want to do or be. Well—The ideal takes hold of you where you are and as you are and puts you in motion—and in the right direction. It leads you to a goal.

Lincoln had a true ideal. It was given him by his wilderness mother, who, when dying, called the nine-year-old boy to her bedside and said: "I am going away, my boy, but I want you to remember that your mother wants you to be a good and a useful man." That ideal—goodness and usefulness—led Lincoln up to the heights.

Jefferson had an ideal—to weave the web of democracy into the warp of organic law. It took him also to the high ground of greatness.

Ideals are living issues, not mere longings.

And your ideal—is it good? Then harness it to your life forces in such a way that it will lead you to noble accomplishment.

Hold fast to it. Dream the dream, but—make the dream come true. Dream? Yes, but do!

Link your ideal to your will power. Then something must move, because you have linked God's power with yours.

Not Much of a Father.
Sammy was found crying because his cat was broken.

"Never mind!" consoled a sympathetic stranger. "Your father can mend that easily."

"Oh, no, he can't," the boy sobbed wretchedly. "My father is a professor, and he don't know anything about anything but blamed old books."—Chicago Record-Herald.

After Radium.
The Mt. Painter field of South Australia is a wonderful place for the occurrence of rare minerals and a company has been recently formed to recover radium from the earth.

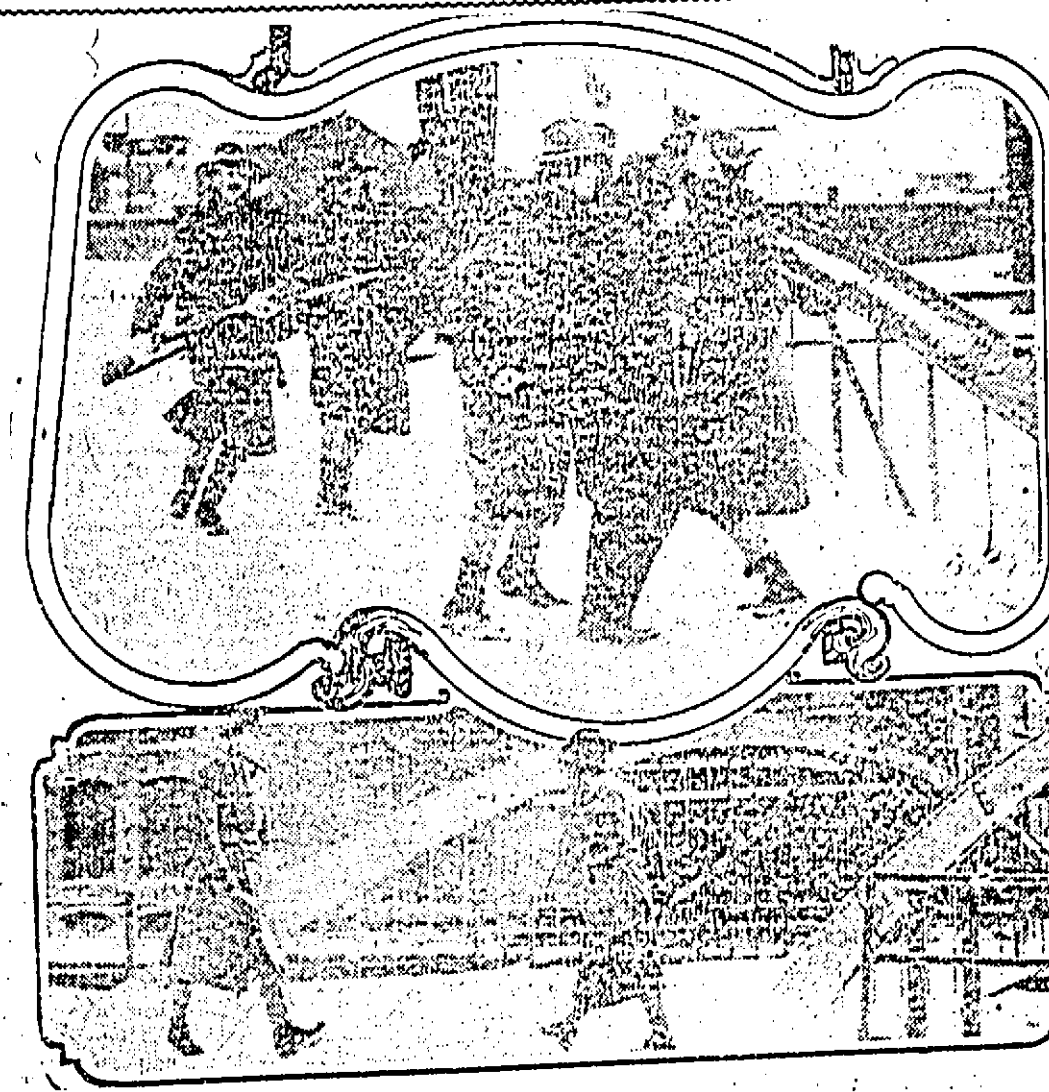

Blood Humors
Commonly cause pimples, boils, hives, eczema, or salt rashes, or some other form of eruption; but sometimes they exist in the system, indicated by feelings of weakness, languor, loss of appetite, or general debility, without causing any breaking out.

They are expelled and the whole system is renovated, strengthened and toned by

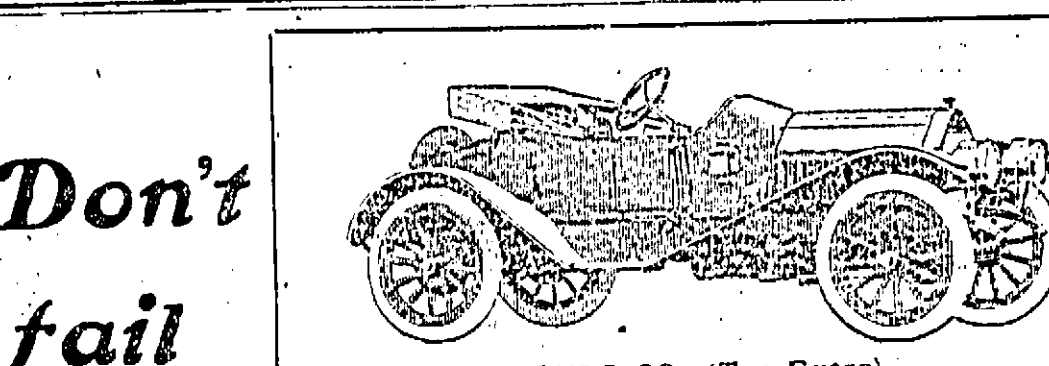

Hood's Sarsaparilla

ON WITNESS STAND.
Andrew Carnegie's evidence, drawn forth reluctantly from him, was of unusual moment in that he gave testimony to the effect that he had been influential in putting the present attorney general, Philander Knox, in his position, and that Knox, while chief counsel for the steel corporation of which Andrew Carnegie held the majority of stock, did not enlighten them as to the full purpose of the Sherman anti-trust law.

"SHOOT TO KILL."
Lawrence, Mass.—With eight companies of state militia including one field battery commanded by Col. E. Leroy Sweetser of the Eighth Regiment doing picket duty here the mill district has assumed a look such as no Massachusetts town has ever known in many years.

U. S. Department of Agriculture. WEATHER BUREAU

Jan. 27, 1912.—The area of low atmospheric pressure that occupied the Mississippi valley yesterday has moved rapidly eastward and is now in the Atlantic off the middle Atlantic coast. It was attended by moderate snowfalls throughout its eastward course, especially in the Lake Region and Ohio Valley.

The area of high atmospheric pressure, which appeared yesterday over Manitoba has moved southward over the Red and Upper Mississippi valleys, attended by a drop in temperature of 18 to 38 degrees. Minimum of 20 to 32 degrees below zero were reached this morning in North Dakota, while temperatures below zero are reported throughout Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota.

NEW FIRE AUTO

New York City.—What is said to be the most powerful fire fighting machine in the world has just been placed in commission here in connection with the many changes inaugurated to perfect New York's fire defense system. The engine is of 124 h. p., gasoline automobile type and travels at the rate of 35 miles an hour. Pumps 744 gallons a minute. It is the expectation of the government to have 150 motor driven fire apparatus by the end of 1912. The weight of the engine is 13,000 pounds.

THE FLYING BOAT

FLYING BOAT GOES A MILE A MINUTE.
New York City.—This is the first hour or fly through air at 60 miles an hour in its equipment. It has a 60 horse power motor, changing from one element to power motor. It is believed that it will be built by Glenn H. Curtiss and just the other at the will of the operator. It can easily be handled on board a boat successfully tested at San Diego, Cal. The "flying boat" is like the hydroplane, but it has two planes! It is built to fly over water at 50 miles an hour.

Nothing Commonplace in the Construction of This Car

The five passenger Hupmobile Touring Car for $900, rejects every characteristic of commonplace construction and makes clear its invasion of the field above that price by points of difference and departure which no motorist can mistake.

It has been evolved out of the experience which has built thousands of the Hupmobile Runabout—the quality car of today, as it always has been, of the runabout class.

Three of its highly specialized features speak so plainly of its greater structural soundness; more progressive engineering principles; and costlier and more careful shop practice; that it is obvious they proclaim a product without precedent at the price.

FIRST, the small bore, long stroke motor.

SECOND, the body design and construction which attains the purpose of the "underslung" and avoids all of its disadvantages; and THIRD, the Americanization, after close study abroad, of invaluable engineering principles entirely new to this country. The small bore, long stroke motor—60% more pulling power for hill work and heavy roads.

Unit power plant.
Cylinders cast en bloc with three bearing crankshaft, instead of two.
Valves encased by pressed steel cover.
Transmission gears of 40 H. P. size.
Full floating rear axle.
Aluminum, crank and gear case.

Hupmobile Long-Stroke "32" Five-Passenger Touring Car, $900

Including equipment of windshield, gas lamps and generator, three oil lamps, tools and horn. Three speeds, forward and reverse; sliding gears. Four cylinder motor, 3 1/2-inch bore x 5 1/2-inch stroke. Bosch magneto, 100-inch wheelbase. 30x3 1/2-inch tires. Color—standard Hupmobile blue.

Hupmobile Runabout, $750

Including top, windshield, gas lamps and generator, three oil lamps, tools and horn. Four cylinders, 20 H. P., sliding gears, Bosch magneto.

In the new Hupmobile plant, now nearing completion, which will have when finished, a capacity of 15,000 to 20,000 cars a year, the Runabout—always a car of unprecedented popularity—will continue to occupy the same large part in our manufacturing plans that it does at present. HUPMOBILE ROADSTER—Chassis World Touring Car—$850.

Be Sure and Attend the Chicago Automobile Show From January 27th to February 3rd.

There you can see all of the new features of the 1912 cars and satisfy yourself that the HUPMOBILE Touring Car at $900 is the one best buy of the season.

Mr. Roy Dean will be in attendance all through the show and will be glad to meet all intending purchasers, and explain the advantages of the HUPMOBILE over all other cars in its class.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

What Are You Putting into the World?

THE season just past that has taught us again that it is more blessed to give than to receive has set some of us to thinking what are we giving the world?

Usually with most of us is the thought, what can we get out of the world? We want to get a living, or fame, or wealth, or social position. Most of us are seeking to get something for ourselves out of the world. And we consider this attitude perfectly legitimate. Perhaps it is. But let us consider this other side a little while, what are we giving the world?

Those who come after us will have to go on building where we leave off. Are we building so that if the structure is to be fair and beautiful, or what we have builded will have to be torn down? Or will it be an inspiration to those who come after, to go forward to complete it, as perfectly and as beautifully as we have begun?

What are we giving the world?

Are we contributing anything to medical science, so that suffering will be lessened in the future? Perhaps we can give nothing but ideas. If so, are we putting forth such suggestive thoughts as business methods as some one on the road to a new and beneficent discovery?

Are we giving the world something in business methods so that business for those who come after will be on a fair or more enjoyable basis?

Are we giving the world some better ideas of home life, so that even housekeeping for our daughters and granddaughters will be a better thing than it has been for us?

Are we giving the world anything that will help along the cause of women, anything that will make children's lives happier, their development better?

Are we giving the world anything to further the cause of brotherhood, to promote universal peace?

There are so many things we could give the world, to make it better and happier for those who come after.

And we cannot shrink the responsibility of giving something by saying that what we give doesn't count. It does count. No matter how very ordinary our station, we can give something that counts.

The housekeeper can give better ideas of housekeeping and home life. The business man can give better ideas of business. The single woman can work in a hundred ways for causes that will help the world forward. The society girl can help put society life on a more useful basis.

Civilization can be lifted by this generation a trifle, here a little, there a little, each doing his part in his special field. And those who come after will find the world a better place to live in, because of what we have given it.

And if we work in this spirit, we certainly get a great deal more joy out of working, than if we are seeking only what the world can give us. It is indeed more blessed to give than to receive. And life takes on a grander meaning and a deeper joy when we are giving to the world something worth while, than when we are only trying to get out of the world something for ourselves.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE other day I heard a young friend of mine using some rather coarse slang. This young person had previously confided to me her intention of achieving all-slang, and trying to speak better English, in emulation of a friend whom she greatly admired.

Naturally, I reminded her of the coincidence, and asked her what Barbara, the much admired one, would think.

"Well, I guess she wouldn't mind much," was the triumphant response, "for I heard her say that very thing herself. I know her better now, and find she uses slang just like other people, so I've quit trying to be so particular. What's good enough for her, is good enough for me."

"How did you feel the first time you heard her use slang?" I inquired curiously.

The young person was thoughtful for a moment. "Well," she said finally, "at first I felt awfully jolted and disappointed. And then afterwards I felt kind of relieved, and glad to find she was human, and I didn't have to be perfect to live up to her."

I wonder if there is any one of us who hasn't been through an experience like that when someone whom we greatly admired proved himself or herself "just like other folks."

First, of course, came a fine feeling of disappointment, and then, also, came the unwelcome feeling of relief. It seemed as if we had suddenly been relieved of an obligation towards higher living which knowing him had laid upon us, by discovering the weakness or blemish in his ideal.

"If he who is so far above us can do this or that," runs the tenor of our subconscious commentary. "What can be expected of us?" And at once we begin to struggle a little less valiantly, to ask a little less of ourselves, to hate weakness and imperfection a little less passionately.

What greater punishment could there be on the little less of popularity and prominence than this weak and unwelcome pleasure we feel in finding that even the most popular people are "just like other folks?"

Nay more, what greater commentary on the tremendous responsibility of all living among people. For who knows but that you or I, who do not count ourselves popular or prominent at all, may be idolized by someone who does not know our weakness and inadequacy.

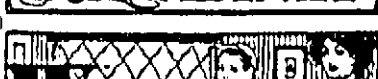

Who knows but that some unworthy act on our part may be the token to such a one that we are "just like other folks" and the signal to him to give up struggling so valiantly to be his best self.

It seems to me that every temptation that assails even the least of us, should be fought, not only with the determination that comes from our desire to live up to our ideals, but from the realization of the let-down we may be giving to someone who idealizes us.

And as for the popular folks, those who are always the cynosure and admiration of neighboring eyes, those whom innumerable humble folks idealize, truly the thought of their responsibility is almost terrible.

How, in the name of common sense, can anyone wish to be or try to be popular? I can hardly understand it—can you? Despite the fact that being only human, I do.

The KITCHEN CABINET

WITNESS the temptation but for man to meet And master and make crouch beneath his feet And so be pedestaled in triumph? —Browning.

LEFT-OVERS OF ALL KINDS.

There are many people who have a strong objection to have anything served to them that has appeared on the table before. Anything hashed or reheated seems especially objectionable. All housekeepers who have to count the pennies in their household expenses have to use up the remnants, and the manner of so doing marks them as artists or otherwise. Often a dish may be made over and be more tasty and attractive than it was on its first appearance.

A few tablespoonsful of canned or preserved fruit, too little to be used on the table, may be combined with orange or lemon, molded by adding gelatine and served as a dessert or a salad. Such a dish may be made especially dainty with a little cure, and the expense is scarcely nothing.

A pint of boiled custard left over from yesterday's dinner, a sauceful of canned pears, an equal quantity of other fruit and a half cup of cream, sweetened and flavored, more if necessary, may be frozen into a delicious dessert.

Many such combination will suggest themselves to the thinking, saving woman. Scraps left from frying out fat, if put through the meat grinder, may be added to cornmeal mush, and when cold cut in slices and fried. This is scrapple, and makes a highly nutritious dish.

Mince meat is a splendid receptacle for saving little bits of preserves, orange marmalade and such fruits, added to the mince meat, they make a vast improvement.

Oatmeal, rice and farina when added to griddle cakes and gobs or muffins are always an improvement on the plain dish.

Pieces of beef steak cut in small pieces and onion added, with water, make an acceptable soup, which may be placed out with dumplings and be sufficient for the main dish of a meal.

It is the wise housewife who watches for the little wastes, and is able to make good things out of food that others throw away.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Making a Little Sausage Meat—Tasty Ways to Cook It.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

Years ago some wise men said that sausages are all right "if you know the woman who makes 'em." Since that day sausage making has been taken from home industries and in few instances where hogs are killed on the farm the pork is cured for by men.

Yet there are some good cooks who would really like to know what is in the sausages that they send to the table and occasionally one likes to prepare a small quantity at home.

For such the following rules are given that have been used time after time in different families that hold them as culinary heir looms. For six pounds of lean pork trimmings and one and one-half pounds of clear fat pork, add one-half cup each of salt and sage mixed with a little summer savory, a level teaspoon each of cayenne and allspice and two level teaspoons of black pepper.

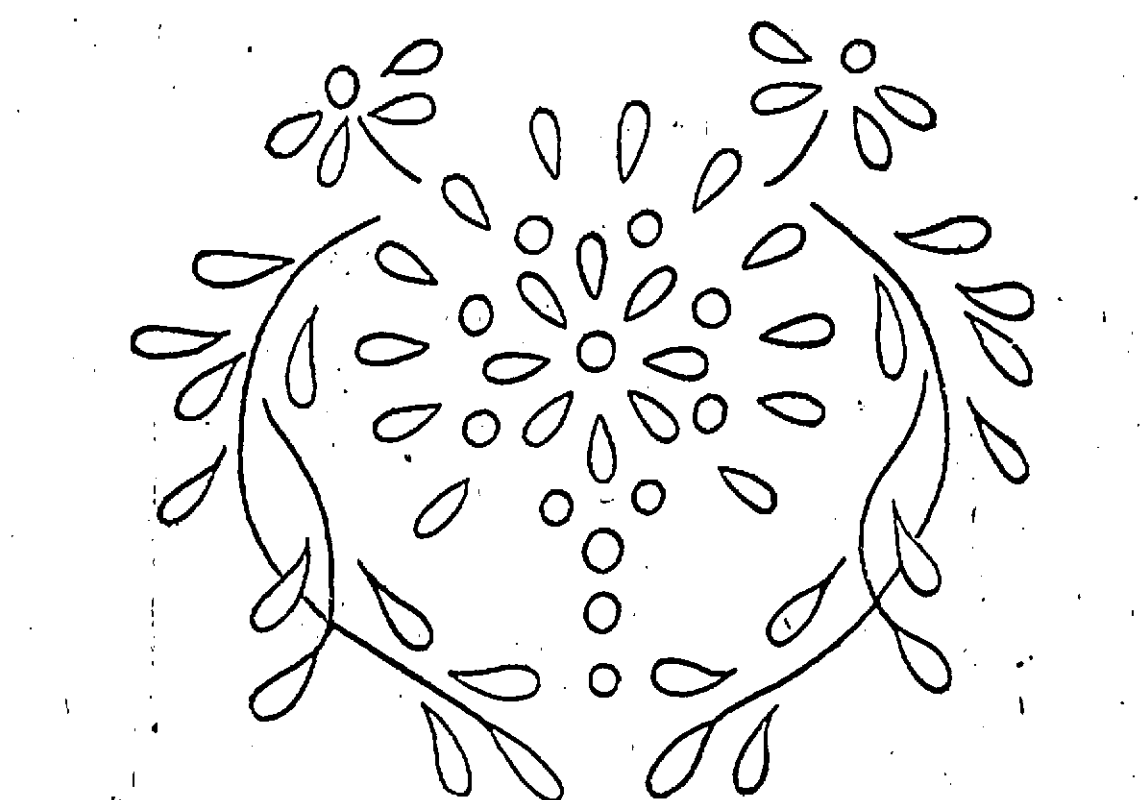

A second rule is for a very small amount. Grind two pounds of fresh pork, having one-quarter of fat, and season with two level teaspoons of pepper, four level teaspoons of salt and a rounding tablespoon of sage or use two rounding teaspoons of sage and one of summer savory.

To keep sausage meat make a long enough to fit the top of a tea cup. Dip it into a strong solution of salt and water and hang to dry thoroughly before filling. Tie a string round one end of the bag, crowd the meat in till completely then tie the top tight.

Sausages are served appetizingly on a bed of mashed potatoes or hominy grits or beans stewed and stuffed making a thick puree. Serve an acid accompaniment like apple or cranberry sauce, sweet or sour pickles. Put the sausages into a frying pan with two-thirds cup of boiling water. Cook until the water evaporates then brown lightly on all sides, take up and drop into cold water. Take out at once, drain and roll each sausage in an egg beaten with one tablespoon of cold water then in fine bread crumbs and lay in a buttered pan. Set in the oven for ten minutes.

The combination of apple and sausage is always good because the acid is treated with the fat. Sausage meat in small pieces as large round as the apples and lay in a hot frying pan. Wipe the apples but do not pare or core. Cut in halves crosswise and place the cut side of the apple down on the sausage. Cover closely and cook moderately. In fifteen minutes uncover and lift each piece of apple and turn the sausage over. Cover and when the apple is tender the sausage will be done.

MOTIF FOR BAG.

This motif for a handkerchief bag is easy to do and very effective. The flowers, leaves and ovals are worked solid with the dots as eyelets and the stems in the outline stitch. Use mercerized cotton No. 20.

THE JET HAIR ORNAMENT.

Jet is the vogue this Fall on gown trimmings and hats, and for the hair. To a blonde there is nothing more in contrast, or more becoming, than a brilliant jet hair ornament. It is the crowning success of any costume.

MRS. DALE HARTLEY

TO MARRY GOVERNOR OF NEVADA.

San Francisco.—Governor Tasker L. Kille of Nevada is going to be married in a few days in Carson City, and his bride will be Mrs. Dale Hartley Baker, widow of the late Rives Baker of Oakland, and sister-in-law of Cleveland H. Baker, attorney general of Nevada. Friends of two families, both here and in the sagebrush capital, are busily whispering the first news of the engagement, which became known officially in the holiday season.

Oddie is well known in San Francisco, and in his own state he is the foremost political figure with a picturesque history extending over a score of years, although he is not yet 40. Mrs. Baker was an Oakland belle a few years ago and is widely known socially.

for breakfast. Chop cold potatoes very fine, season with salt and a little pepper. Put two rounding tablespoons of bacon fat in a frying pan and when hot spread in three cups of the finely chopped potatoes and brown thoroughly on the under side. Turn a broad flexible knife under one side and fold over like an omelet then slide on to a warm platter. If the potato is not folded, lay the heated platter on the frying pan, invert and leave the browned side of potato on top when served.

Signs That Foretell Weather.

The country dweller has a thousand weather signs that the city man never knows. A red sunset means very little to the man in the street, but to the man among the lanes it indicates rain and bad weather. Smoke that rises straight in the air is another of the signs that a fairer weather and foretells bad weather. Creaks about the moon and sun, streaks of greasy clouds and the peculiar actions of birds and domestic animals are all indications of some change in the weather to the man whose eye has been trained to recognize the signs.

These are bargain days. Read Gazette ads, and profit.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

MONODIET HELPFUL IN ECZEMA.

Whatever local treatment may be used in the treatment of eczema, diet is of fundamental importance. The most important change is to omit flesh entirely and to exclude all stimulants and condiments, including salt and pepper. Exclusive diets of buttermilk, fruits and unpolished rice, each continued for several days, according to the individual requirements, always prove beneficial. A tablespoonful of ground bran should be mixed with the rice if it causes constipation. At least two quarts of water should be drunk daily, distilled, if the supply contains much mineral or vegetable matter.

It was the most exciting moment of one of those midnight rehearsals. Try as he would, Donald Brian, the actor, could not induce the orchestra to play sufficiently loud for a smashing finale. Finally in desperation he called out to the orchestra conductor: "Swell! Vicars, Swell!" Whereat the phlegmatic, unruffled English conductor stopped the band, turned smilingly to Mr. Brian and said: "Thank you, sir."

FACTORY GIRL GIVES UP

Too Sick to Work—Doctor Advised Operation. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—"I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for female trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me more than the doctors did. I hope that every one who is suffering will get the Compound. My pains, nervousness and backache are gone and I have gained five pounds. I owe my thanks to your medicine for it is the working girls friend, and all women who suffer should write to you for special advice."—Miss TILLIE FLEENZIG, 3 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

When a remedy has lived for over thirty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their very lives to it, it is not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

We challenge anyone to show any other one remedy for a special class of disease which has attained such an enormous demand and maintained it for so many years as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Don't Buy Bottled Promises

Newbro's Herpicide is Bottled Results—Results Are What You Want.

A feeling of uncertainty, a dread of possible disappointment, always goes with an "off brand" hair preparation. That is part of the purchase, just as much so as the label on the bottle.

You don't get this with a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide. It is not an experiment. You number among your acquaintances and friends hundreds who have used Herpicide with satisfaction, and you know that you can do the same. The results are always positive, always right.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and stops falling hair. Any drugget will sell you a one dollar size bottle under an absolute guarantee.

Any Cake Made With MATCHLESS FLOUR will be a success Madam

If you use Christian's Matchless Flour you can bake your cake and eat it too.

So-called "pastry" flours are made exclusively from winter wheat which when sound imparts a nutty flavor to a baking.

Matchless Flour contains just enough No. 1 Red Winter Wheat to give your cake the desired flavor and smoothness; just enough No. 1 Minnesota Spring Wheat to make the cake light.

Follow your recipe and use Matchless Flour and you will soon have a reputation as a cake baker.

Thought for Today

REDUCING IN WEIGHT.

IT IS more difficult to reduce the weight permanently than to decrease measurements. Indeed it is quite possible to lessen the size of the waist and hips considerably with exercise, while the weight remains the same. It may even increase, because muscle is heavier than flesh.

A daily record of both weight and measurement should be kept by those seriously trying to improve their proportions. A fight against flesh is like a struggle against any other physical ailment. When the tendency is ground for hope and gratitude. One who has a strong tendency to increase in flesh should be thankful when the scales show no additional weight. After the system once begins to yield, the progress is more rapid, but not usually uniform. One case I know of, a woman worked hard for three weeks without making the obstinate scale take off an ounce. Then quite suddenly one day they yielded two pounds. There was a hard fight for a number of days to hold them to that record, then they yielded another pound. It was three months before ten pounds had been removed, and it took a year of watchfulness to permanently establish the lowered standard. Several times since it has required determined effort to prevent the recurrence of the flesh habit. But it has not been so difficult to master as the first time.

Where there is a general fleshing up of the whole body all invigorating exercises which call into play as many muscles as possible should be practiced. There is nothing so good as outdoor exercises for the purpose. The fresh air is a very helpful agent. Rapid walking, running, bicycling, swimming, horseback riding, are excellent exercises. Turkish baths are good; once a week is effective in holding down the weight. Free perspiration is desirable for the stout. If one cannot patronize a Turkish bath establishment, a cabinet can be fitted up in the home at low cost.

COASTS UNDER HORSE; HEAD HIT BY HOOF

Orville Dudley Severely Injured About
Head and Face And Removed—Temporarily Unconscious.

Falling to notice the approach of a team or to avoid it after he saw it coming, Orville Dudley, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Dudley, 218 North High street yesterday counted into its path at the corner of Jackson and Havine streets and was struck on the head by the hoof of one of the horses. He was badly hurt about the head and face and was rendered unconscious. The other children standing witnessed the accident and their screams of fright brought the wounded boy help. The driver of the team did not stop but whipped up his horses when he saw that the boy was hurt.

The Lamp That Saves The Eyes

Children naturally never think of possible strain on their eyesight when poring over a fascinating book.
It is up to you to see they do not ruin their young eyes these long evenings by reading under a poor light.
The Rayo Lamp is an insurance against eye troubles, alike for young and old.

The Rayo is a low-priced lamp, but it is constructed on the soundest scientific principles, and there is not a better lamp made at any price.
It is easy on the eye because its light is so soft and white and widely diffused. And a Rayo Lamp never flickers.
Easily lighted without removing shade or chimney; easy to clean and tweek.
Solid brass throughout, with handsome nickel finish; also in many other styles and finishes.
Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps or write for descriptive circular

PERMANENTLY CURED OF GOITRE AFTER SUFFERING EIGHTEEN YEARS.

MRS. MARIA PHILLIPS, MARINETTE, WIS., REPORTS CURE
AFTER REPEATED EFFORTS HAD FAILED.

CURE EFFECTED BY DR. GODDARD, MILWAUKEE SPECIAL-IST, WHO WILL BE AT HO TEL MYERS TUESDAY, JANUARY 30.

One of the most remarkable cures that has come to your attention, was effected by Dr. Goddard, the Milwakee Specialist, who cured Mrs. Maria Phillips, of a severe case of Goitre. This unfortunate woman suffered for 18 years. All efforts of the doctors failed to effect a cure. Finally Mrs. Phillips called upon the noted specialist.
In three months a cure was effected and Mrs. Phillips has now entirely regained her health. The case of Mrs. Phillips is only one of scores of remarkable cures that are attributed to Dr. Goddard's control over disease. This is what Mrs. Phillips says:

"Dr. N. A. Goddard,
"Dear Doctor:
"Regarding my goitre, will say that it has entirely gone after three months treatment with you. I had had my goitre about 18 years and had treated with Dr. — and Dr. — of Marinette for a year without any result. I am also over my womb trouble for which I doctored so long.
When I finished my treatment with you I weighed 131 pounds. More than I ever did in my life. I feel fine in every way and cannot praise your skill too highly. I shall certainly advise my friends in need of treatment to come and see you. I do not believe the money I have spent in getting cured and would not go back as I was for ten times what it cost me.
All I can say is you will always be my physician in the future, and I want to thank you for all you have done
for me.—Yours very truly,
Mrs. Maria Phillips, R. F. D., No. 2, Marinette, Wis."

MOST CURES EFFECTED WITH-OUT AN OPERATION.
Dr. Goddard believes that 80% of all operations are unnecessary. He does not hesitate to recommend an operation when necessary, but the fact remains that practically all of his patients are cured without the use of the knife.
The wonderful success attained by the well known specialist is largely due to his power to properly diagnose disease. Once the cause is determined the cure is comparatively simple for the doctor's wide experience enables him to act with comparative certainty.

CONSULTATION FREE.
Dr. Goddard frequently takes cases when patients are in poor circumstances at a very low fee. He feels that every suffering man or woman should have the advantage of his wide experience regardless of what fee he may secure. If you are suffering from any chronic disease do not fail to see the Milwaukee specialist.
Dr. Goddard visits Janesville once each month. He will be at the Hotel Myers on Tuesday, January 30. His office hours are 9 A. M. to 4:30 P. M.
Consultation and examination are offered free.

LITERARY SOCIETY WILL GIVE PROGRAM

Evanville Women's Club Will Entertain Monday Evening at the Library Hall—Other
Evanville News.

Evanville, Jan. 27.—The Woman's Literary Club will give a literary and social evening in Library hall, Monday evening. The main feature and a very interesting one, will be stereop-tomic pictures of scenes from abroad, brought home by Mrs. Vio Campbell.
These pictures will be many of the scenes connected with Shakespeare's home and his works. Besides these many others, but the Shakespearean pictures will be very beneficial to the Literary club, as they have followed that line of work for their study the past year. There will also be a short literary program in connection with the above.

The Woman's Literary club have extended a very cordial invitation to all the members of the Afternoon Club and any other friends who are interested along this line of work.

Evanville Locals.
Lylo Richardson is home from Canning her sister, and other friends here.
Lylo Richardson is home from Canada, for a visit with his parents, Mr.
and Mrs. T. C. Richardson of this place.

C. R. Stockwell, Grand Lecturer for the R. A. Masons, held a school of instruction for Evanville Chapter No.
25, Thursday evening.

Two very good games of basket ball were played here last evening. The Oregon Juniors playing the Evanville Juniors, although the game resulted in a score of 7 to 6 in Oregon's favor, the game was a fine clean game, from start to finish. Not a score was made in the last half on either side. Evan-ville was at quite a disadvantage, as the Oregon men were considerably larger than the home boys.

The other game, Evanville Y. M. C. A. against Janesville Y. M. C. A. was the game of the season. Both teams played a very fast game. Janesville did considerable fouling causing the score of the Evanville to steadily increase in the first half. The basket throwing by Will Benson was very good indeed, and the team work the Evanville boys did was great. The scores remained quiet over the first half of the game, when Janesville gradually began to fall behind and the score resulted in a victory for Evanville, 15 to 22 in Evanville's favor. Evanville has played eleven games so far this season and only lost three out of the eleven. This is a very good record and the boys expect to win several more. In the last half Graham substituted in place of Bert Holmes.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell of Janesville, visited at the Van Worman home, Friday and Saturday. Mr. Hartwell coming up with the Janesville basket ball team.

The Dancing Club gave another very enjoyable party in the Opera house last night.

The Reading Circle of the Congregational church, gave a very interesting and well attended entertainment in the church Thursday evening. The main feature was Miss Alma May Taylor, reader and impersonator also several musical selections were given.
After the expenses were all paid the Reading Circle made a profit of fourteen dollars and seventy-five cents ($14.75). They have not decided for what good cause they will use the money, but it will be spent very profitably to help the church in some manner.

The Bridge Club met with Miss
Mable Hartshorn yesterday afternoon.
Mr. F. W. Herron and Mrs. H. A.
Hogers held equal scores and in the cutting for the prize it fell to Mrs.
Herron. The club will meet with Mrs.
E. G. Eldridge next week.

The Public Improvement Club of the Congregational church discussed the Wisconsin Income Tax Law. Fifty-three men took part of a sumptuous dinner at 6:30 p. m. after which Mr. E. B. Harkness presented a paper setting forth the income tax law and its meaning and J. H. Hewitt opposed the discussion in favor of the law, and Warren H. Latta spoke of the objection. H. A. Moshlapp and others took part in the free parliament.
A pleasant feature of the meeting was the hostess by Paul McKinney and the male quartette number by Leonard Gates, E. E. Eldridge, Burdette Rogers and Paul McKinney.
John Holmer at the organ. The meeting was the best yet held, and the club has come to be a feature of Clinton's social activities. The next meeting will be held on Feb. 23 in honor of Washington's birthday.

ENJOYED SLEIGH RIDE THURSDAY EVENING

Twenty Janesville Young People Attended High School Dancing Party at Milton Junction.

Twenty Janesville young people consisting of an equal number of young men and women made up a splendid party to Milton Junction on Thursday evening, where they attended a dance given by the high school students.

Miss Gertrude McGlinley, the pianist and W. W. Menzies, who played the drums furnished an excellent program of classical and popular dance music.
The party returned after midnight.

Those who made the trip were:
Misses Gertrude Cassidy, Marie Donahue, Clara Garbutt, Florence Britt, Jennie Slavson, Marion Proctor, Gertrude Bennett, Josephine McGlinley, Arvilla Kalkaka and Gertrude McGlin-ley and the Messrs. Howard Catlin, Paul Owen, Dave Brown, John Has-linger, Earl Merriek, John McCus, Roy Merriek, Ed. Hall, Will Sullivan, and Mark Hall. Mrs. W. W. Menzies chaperoned the crowd.

SHOPIERE
Shopiere, Jan. 26.—About fifty ladies spent a very pleasant day, Thursday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs.
Brotherton.

The Woodman and Royal Neighbor Installation went off fine, after which the young people enjoyed themselves dancing until two o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Lovell Gilbert entertained the latter's sister, Mrs. Will Zick of Deloit, Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Hazel Sullivan is exempt from Deloit high school this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen visited relatives here Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Shimeall spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Manley at Deloit.

On February 7th the M. E. ladies have invited the Congregational ladies to join with them for an all-day meeting in the basement of the church.
Each one is to bring something for dinner.

Miss Kate Crull took her pupils for a sleigh ride Thursday night. A number of other young people went along.

MAGNOLIA CENTER

WANTED TO KNOW.

Willie (aged seven)—Say, pop, did a man ever shoot the Niagara Rapids? Pop—Yes.
Willie—Well, if he had only gotten half way through would they have been half shot?

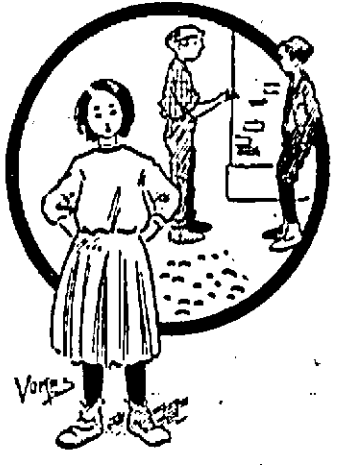

UNNATURAL FEELING.

Clubman—Shay, M'ria, I feel as though I was whaling all round you! Wonder what's got into me?
Mrs. Clubman—You ought to know, you poured it in!

Inconvenience of Wealth.
The Traveler—I'm sorry, my boy, but I seem to have left my purse in my other coat.
The Bootblack (sympathetically)—Dat's what comes f'm havin' two coats.

THINKS IT A BLUFF.

Mickey—Say, Chimmie, it's wrong ter ill-treat a woman, but if no gull ever says to me some galls says ter dere fellows I know I'll lose me temper. Chimmie—What's dat?
Mickey—Why, when I suppose to her an' she says dis is so sudden.

THAT IMPUDENT QUESTION.

Just as Rivera was about to sit down to dinner there came a ring at his telephone.
"Well?" he said, placing the receiver to his ear.
"Who is this?" demanded a high pitched, impatient voice.
"This," pleasantly answered Rivera, "is Don Hippolito Lopez Pomposo Antonio Ricardo Dolores, is that all you wish to know? Good-by."
Hanging up the receiver, he sat down and ate his dinner, happily unaware that an indignant person at the other end of the wire was storming at central for giving him the wrong number.

How Another Was Made Ill.
Joe—How are you, old man?
Arthur—Got a beautif' cold, y'know.
Joe—Hard luck, bah Jove. Been going out in the cold without your monocle?
Arthur—No. Called on Henry at his house and that wretched dog of his persisted in wagging his tail and creating a draft.—T-B-M.

Their Limit.
"There is one queer thing about fish stories."
"What is that?"
"Fishermen, in telling of their catches, never seem able to draw the line."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE PRIMARY LAW
By HOWARD L. RANN.

THE primary election law is a beneficent enactment designed to hasten the dawn of the millennium. It makes it a crime for a candidate to flourish a $2 bill or a campaign cigar in the face of an incorruptible electorate and compels him to resort to the certified check. Under the primary law the office seeks the man, not the man the office. It usually seeks him with a half-raising history of his past life and a printing bill that would stagger a circus. A man may be able to deceive his neighbors by paying cash for his groceries and meat and joining the Y. M. C. A., but he becomes a candidate at a primary election his family will realize for the first time that they have been harboring a crook in the home circle. This law is said to be the poor man's friend because it bankrupts every candidate who falls to cop. The only man who ever clawed his way to congress through a primary election without mortgaging the family cow is one who was appointed to fill vacancy and never tried to come back. Brahma is seldom quoted at 100% and secured interest in a primary election. The chief requirements are a flow of burning words and a glib-fling rating at the First National Bank. A candidate may have the words, but if he is shy on the rating he is as helpless as grandma on roller skates. The primary has scoured the death knell of the old-fashioned political boss with the bright red neck, and has substituted a gentler breed of managers, who relieve the people of the trouble of naming the candidates and writing the platform. The primary is very popular in states where money is light and male votes can be delivered for six bits, f. o. b. the nearest polling place.

Hard to See.
First Scot—What sort o' meenister has ye gotten, George.
Second Scot—We seldom get a glint o' him; six days o' th' week he's enveopsh'd, and on the seventh he's incomp'ens'ble.—T-B-M.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janeville Gazette, Jan. 27, 1872.
—Gladstone and Darnell have sent circulars to their supporters in parliament begging them to be present on the 6th proximo, as the important business of the election of a speaker demands their attention.
There was no important change in the condition of the Union Pacific railway yesterday. The westward bound train arrived at Cheyenne. It was snowing at Laramie. A train left there for the east following the shovellers.
A railroad collision is reported from Ripon, in which no one was injured.
Mrs. McMartin, of the First ward, suffered the loss of a full line of clothes Wednesday night at the hands of prowling thieves. She was awake at the time the clothes were taken and witnessed the theft but was too much terrified to protest against the operation or give an alarm. As she knows the parties who appropriated the clothes she hopes she will follow the advice of her friends and have them brought to justice, unless they see fit to return her property.
The Stoughton reporter says: "Quite an excitement in the tobacco clos is created here by the presence of several Chicago dealers who are offering liberal bids for the weed."
London Jan. 27.—The Duke of New-castle declares that the conservatives of England distrust Gladstone because he is believed to favor abolition in the House of Lords, and dandles with dangerous principles and with Sir Charles Dilke and other disturbers of the constitutional order of things.
Paris, Jan. 27.—A special dispatch from Nice states that Minister Washburn gave a grand banquet to General Sherman on the eve of his departure for Italy, before the American squadron was ready to sail for the Italian port.
